St. Paul's W.A. Hears Fine Talk

"The Post-War Women" Is Subject of Address By Mrs. E. C. Roberts, Campbellford

The October meeting of St. Paul's Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Thompson on Tuesday afternoon, October 2nd, with forty-three ladies present. The devotional and business portion of the meeting was directed by the president, Mrs. R. B. Duffin. The meeting opened with the singing of the theme song, prayer by the President, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, along with all other communications received during the past month, also reported five cards and two letters had been sent during September. The visiting committee reported sixteen visiting calls made during the month. Mrs. O. Stapley and Mrs. M. Hick will act as the visiting committee for October. The Treasurer, Mrs. Oliver Stapley presented a very complete financial report. Miss Della Caldwell presented a very complete and detailed report of the meeting of the Board of Stewards and all members of the Parsonage Committee of the W. A. which met at the Parsonage on Monday evening. A motion was passed, giving this committee the authority to act in regards to the decorating and etc., of the Parsonage. The canvassers were all appointed to canvas in lieu of cooking, and reports handed in to the President or Secretary by Saturday, was directed by the convenor of the committee, Mrs. Walter Elliott. After the singing of hymn 577, Mrs. Will West read the Scripture Lesson, taken from the second chapter of Corinthians, verses 6 to 15, and Mrs. G. W. Hagerman gave the comments on the Lesson, followed with prayer by Mrs. G. W. Jones. Mrs. Walter Elliott gave a timely talk on "Thanksgiving". In a very capable manner the speaker took each letter in the word "Thanksgiving", giving a word beginning with that letter, and explaining how we could apply it to our everyday life. Mrs. Cecil Macklin delighted the W.A. with the solo, "Count Your Blessings", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Herb David. Mrs. E. C. Roberts, of Campbellford, was the guest speaker of the afternoon, and delivered an outstanding address on, "The Post War Women." The speaker stressed the task that the women of to-day are facing, as so much depends upon the influence of the home. Mrs. Roberts left a stirring message of real interest with her listeners.

The meeting closed with the singing of hymn 579—and misapplied benediction. A very dainty luncheon was served by the committee in charge. The gratitude of the W. A. to the hostesses, Mrs. J. B. Thompson and Mrs. Edgar Morrow, the guest speaker, Mrs. Roberts, and all who took part on the program, and the entire committee in charge was ably voiced by Mrs. G. H. Luery. The following ladies were responsible for the program and lunch, Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mrs. G. W. Hagerman, Mrs. M. Hick, Mrs. G. W. Jones, Miss Eliza Donnan, Mrs. Will West, Mrs. M. Phillips, Mrs. C. Thompson, Mrs. H. Potter, Mrs. W. Hawkins, Mrs. H. Dettlor, Mrs. Roy Finkle.

Village Council Holds Regular

Matters of Routine Occupy Time of Members — Big Elm Tree To Be Removed

Matters of routine occupied the attention of the village council at the regular monthly meeting on Monday night. Reeve Wm. West presided and was supported by Councillors Elliott, Bailey, Thompson and Wells.

Following the adoption of the minutes of last meeting, G. H. Luery, clerk, read communications from the Toronto Industrial Commission, and the Department of planning and Development enclosing a questionnaire concerning the advantages offered by this village to new industries. The clerk was authorized to prepare an answer to same to be presented to council before being forwarded to the Department.

Mr. A. Collings addressed Council relative to tile for a driveway to his property on Edward St. The Streets Committee will make an early inspection of the site.

Reeve West introduced the matter of removing the big elm tree by the handstand. Many of its limbs were badly decayed and while he regretted having it destroyed, yet he felt it was a menace to public safety in its present condition. Members of Council agreed and it was moved by councillors Bailey and Elliott that the tree be given anyone who would remove it without damage to the surrounding property.

A request from Lawrence Munro to have the walk repaired in front of his residence was left with the streets committee and the procuring of suitable logs for use at the village dam was discussed at length.

The following accounts were ordered paid—K. Ward, $54.00; Wells Bros, wood, $40.00; W. T. Elliott, tax collection bond, $12.00; J. L. Good, painting rest rooms, $86.40; Sam Bowen, work on culverts, $9.90; Harry Francis, $4.15; Harry Jones, gravel, $7.00; Fruit Machinery Co., streets, $25.92; Livingston Stokers, $8.90.

THOUGHTS WHILE SHOWERING

... Hear that William M. Birks took on the chairmanship of the National Clothing Collection. Hmmm... if that man of affairs is taking time off to collect clothes for the relief of war victims, must be a mighty important need. Good idea, too, combining for all nations in one big annual drive. Better than lots of little drives. Tears my heart out to think of shivering youngsters anywhere, regardless whether it's China, Greece, Britain, Russia or any place else on earth. Cold is lots colder when you've nothing on to fight it. Don't know how they withstood it last Winter. Fact is, I hear that too many thousands... no, better put my mind on something constructive. Make up a bundle? That ought to be easy. Let's see now... there's that flannel shirt I used to wear on hikes, too small for me now anyhow. Might as well throw in Jim's shirts, too—he'll never fit into them again when he's back from service. Know what? Gonna get rid of that old tweed suit that I haven't worn the past three years. Takes up too much closet room and Martha never did like it on me anyhow. Too bad they can't use my old felt hats... must have a million of them... but come to think of it, where's that heavy cap with the fur earflaps that Jim used to wear? Must be worth its weight in gold to a Belgian right now. Bet our house is loaded with things they need over there lots more than we need 'em here. Compared to them, we don't even know the meaning of war. All they ask of us now is to give what we can spare... I'll say, that's little enough we can do. Oh, MARTHA!

The local chapter of the I.O.D.E. has assumed charge of the drive for clothing in Stirling and district, and will make a canvas of the village on October 10th. Citizens are urged, if possible, to deliver their own clothing at the Agricultural Office, Stirling.

TRULY A WAR LOAN

Nowadays we are being jostled by problems of peace. Almost everything we read, all the utterances of public men, tends to emphasize the fact that the war is now history.

Yet, the Ninth Victory Loan which will be opened to the public on October 22, is definitely a war loan.

There exists no magic wand one can use to waft military forces from the scenes of battle to their normal surroundings overnight. Unfortunately, long after the enemy cries surrender, the cost of war goes on. It is estimated, for example, that the country of Canada must raise a sum of about $25,000,000.00 during the present year to provide adequate medical attention and hospitalization for the men who are coming back wounded and sick. Last year, members of the House of Commons were told that at that time $750,000,000.00 would be needed to pay gratuities and take care of re-establishment credits to men returning from battle. One year having passed since then, the cost of that important undertaking has now reached about $900,000,000.00. In addition to all that, the Canadian people must meet the cost of bringing the troops home, the maintenance of our forces of occupation in Germany. Pay of the men who are waiting demobilization goes on. Cheques to dependents keep going out until the soldier has his discharge paper.

There are heavy domestic expenditures, made heavier by the unprecedented demands of this period of re-construction in the country, which are included in the total of the Ninth Victory Loan objective. But of this we can be sure. The major portion of the money which Canadians will provide for the purchase of bonds in October and November is needed to cover the cost of war.

What Others Say!

ONE MARRIAGE LAW

To prevent a continuance of confusing, unjust and, indeed, scandalous consequences, Canada should have a national and uniform Marriage Act superseding all existing acts and providing proper safeguards for the moral, legal and civil rights of contracting parties or their issue. Parliament should so enact and without further delay.

—Brantford Expositor.

BACK TO CHURCH

With the arrival of the fall season, the most active season for the churches gets under way. A great many people stay away from church during the summer months, although heaven knows they need the inspiration and help of the church just as much in the summer as any other time, points out the Barrie Examiner.

But whether or not church-going has been properly observed during the summer months, all should get back into the habit now that fall is here.

Church going is merely a human way, and a corporate way of showing gratitude for all the good things we enjoy. There are those morbid minds who would rather dwell on the sad things of life, and forget that they have a right to be grateful for the God-given privileges that all of us possess in some degree.

We can all be thankful for our homes, our friends, our food, clothing, and the beauties of the country in which we live. We can be thankful for music, and laughter, and the other simple pleasures of life. We can be thankful for being spared so much of what others have suffered in these past six years. We can be thankful for eyes that can see, and ears that hear, and minds that can think.

We know the old story on being able to worship God just as well in the woods, along the trout stream, or even in one's own home. That's true, you can, but the trouble is, the people who argue this way don't do it. It is much better to join corporately with others in giving thanks for all the good things of life.

Lastly, the churches are the guardians of the moral and decent way of life. Let the churches starve for membership and money, and you will lose all that religion has given to the world, and that means all the freedoms to which we have become accustomed, and for which too often, we fail to be thankful, and fail to safeguard. Let's go back to church—starting next Sunday—Picton Gazette.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK—OCT. 7—13th

For the first time in six long years, Fire Prevention Week will be observed under peacetime instead of war-time conditions. During that period, the world has seen the use of fire as a major weapon of war. It was the endeavour of both sides to reduce the other side's ability to wage war by the destruction by fire of his war plants and at the same time every effort was made in the homeland to prevent such destruction. In the end, the Allies by reason of vastly superior war materials, won out.

But have we won the fight against the fire demon here at home? Recent holocausts have indicated that we have not. The destruction by fire of one of the Great Lakes passenger boats, the burning of a famous Muskoka summer resort, and the near annihilation of that great Eastern Canadian port of Halifax show us very forcibly that as a nation we have not yet learned to be careful with fire. The fact that there was so small a loss of life in these conflagrations—one fatality in the Halifax explosions—was indeed providential. There could quite easily have been many more.

In spite of the efforts of fire prevention and fire protection officials throughout Canada, fire losses jumped from slightly more than 24½ million dollars in 1939 to over 40 million dollars in 1944. It is quite true that the values at risk in the latter year were far in excess of those in 1939 but it is also a fact that every effort was being put forth to conserve our resources for the war. In spite of those efforts, this country saw a mounting fire loss year after year. Now that hostilities have ended, let us hope that there will not be a repetition of events following the last great war when between 1919 and 1922 fire losses jumped from 25 millions to 54 millions in property damage alone.

There seems to be a general feeling that now that the war is over, something akin to a Utopia will be reached. We may not exactly attain that goal and we certainly will not if we permit life and property to be destroyed at the appalling rate which has been reached in recent years. It would seem that the world is waiting to make a fresh start in many phases of its existence. Fire Prevention Week this year offers an excellent opportunity to intensify our efforts in the prevention of fire in our homes, schools, places of business and factories. It only remains for us to keep in mind that we are going to be careful of fire from now on, remembering that fully 80% of our fires are due to carelessness and remembering also that it is our patriotic duty to prevent fires.

DAIRY CATTLE EXPORT

The export of dairy cattle to United States, in large numbers, has demonstrated that the breeders in Ontario can spare good economical cows and heifers and at the same time improve their herds. Buyers are not having nearly as much difficulty as ten years ago in finding what they want. The trade has stimulated the production of more and better cattle.

DAYLIGHT SAVING NOT A MUNICIPAL QUESTION

The question of adopting daylight saving time is being passed back by the Ottawa government to the municipal authorities, who, when they had this power before, made an unholy muddle of the time situation by not getting together and deciding on uniformity for all places. They'll likely do so again. Why doesn't Ottawa take action to ban daylight saving altogether or else fix uniform dates for its adoption in summer time and its discontinuance in the Autumn? That's the only way to avoid those mix-ups in time that we had before war time was ordered. The people should not be compelled to again put up with this sort of nuisance.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

LIBERTY OF THE SUBJECT

Commons Hansard

—Mr. J. G. Diefenbaker (Lake Centre)..... I think it is time to re-view the orders still in effect under the War Measures Act under which boards are constituted. Under certain of these orders a board may bring a man before them, examine him under oath, deny him the right to have counsel, and then make the person so interrogated liable to criminal prosecution. One such case was reviewed by the Court of Appeal of British Columbia, and the court indicated it could do nothing about it, that the power was exercisable.

Similar powers are being exercised today under the Exile Act. A police officer who finds he is unable to secure evidence to convict has the power, with the license of the minister, to bring an individual before an inspector of the Mounted Police, where he is interrogated under oath, without counsel and without protection, and on his statement there given, may be convicted.

Regulations and orders of this kind should be brought before a committee of Parliament so that we may once more assert that no controller, no board, no regulation passed beyond the pale of Parliament, shall control the rights and liberty of an individual in this country, while denying him recourse to the courts.

THE WEEKLY PAPER

Folks may prize the city dailies with their editorial views,

With their boasted circulation and their telegraphic views.

With parliamentary speeches and the same old party song,

And their so-called brainy essays which are always dry and long.

They may prize the great trade journals or the classic magazine,

With its illustrated stories and the science in between.

But the one I hail with gladness which I long so for to come.

Is that little village weekly which they send me down from home.

Tain't no twenty-page edition for it has but only four,

But they breathe the breath of comfort and I always long for more, Tain't what folks would call artistic, for at times it's dim and blurred, But it only serves to interest, and I make out every word.

It is most bright and cheery, though sometimes my heart is bled, As I read a black-lined notice that some old-time friend is dead,

But there's far more joy and sorrow in the messages so sweet,

Of that little Country weekly, that away back country sheet.

During peak operations of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, there were 73 flying schools and 24 RAF transferred schools in Canada. The plan's trained staff grew from 4,538 in 1940 to more than 140,000 by December, 1943.

Canada's ninth and biggest Victory Loan begins on October 22. It will be two loans in one, covering 12 months instead of six. Its objective will exceed the record goal of $1,350,000,000 which was set and over-subscribed during the eighth loan.

Canada has been invited to send 10 delegates to the World Youth Conference which opens in London, England, October 31. Youth organizations from all over Canada will select delegates representing Canadian youth in business, farm, labour, religious and racial groupings.

PLANNING for TOMORROW'S FARMING

OUT OF THE WEALTH OF OUR SOILS

By: G. N. Ruhnke, F.C.I.C., Head of the department of Chemistry and Director of Soil Surveys, Ontario Agricultural College

(NOTE—This is the second in a series of comments by well-known authorities, written expressly for the Weekly Press of Ontario.)

Ontario farmers have done a splendid job of food production during these war years, in spite of the shortages of labour and equipment which had to be met. They have shown a high degree of efficiency in the use of land and a noteworthy resourcefulness in adapting their farm operations to meet the changing wartime needs for the various agricultural products.

For the present, the demand for intensive production on our farms is still upon us. Food is still a weapon of war in the Pacific and, although the war in Europe is over, the great needs of the liberated countries there must be met until their own production can be made sufficient. How long this may be is not too certain, but one authority has estimated that the 1944 level of Canadian farm production will be required for at least the next two years. After the war is over, the changed position with respect to world supplies and world markets for farm products may necessitate profound adjustments in our agricultural program.

As a result of the experiences following the last war, farmers are looking ahead with more concern for the future. Among other things they recognize that greater efficiency in the use of land, labor and machinery will be necessary. A low cost of production will be an important factor in meeting postwar competition.

In general, the lowest cost of production is obtained with high yield levels and high yields can be maintained only on fertile and productive soils. Food is fabricated soil fertility. It is out of the wealth of our soils that we have produced the food to fight the war, and it is out of the wealth of our soils that we must continue to produce the food to win the peace.

It is timely then, in our post-war planning to ask ourselves what measures are we taking to insure that soil fertility on our farms is being maintained in the interest of efficient use of land, and a prosperous and enduring agriculture. During the past ten years, the total tonnage of fertilizers used in Ontario has approximately trebled, yet in spite of this, and the introduction of improved varieties of crops, improved drainage, and the wider use of more efficient tillage, seeding and harvesting machinery, the average yields of the common farm crops have failed to show a corresponding improvement.

It is true, however, that on many farms crop yields have been increased far above the average where good soil management is being practised. Thus we are forced to conclude that on a much larger proportion of our Ontario farms the yields are considerably lower than the average, and we are taking more out of the soil than is being put back.

There are other striking indications that point to the need for a vigorous program for soil improvement and soil conservation in Ontario. The increasing difficulty in growing alfalfa and clover, on soils which formerly produced them in abundance, is but another reflection of falling fertility in the soil. The depletion of the humus, or organic matter, in our intensively cultivated, heavy-textured soils has made them harder to work, more difficult to drain, and less productive. The lack of humus in our sandy soil is making them more subject to leaching of plantfood in wet seasons and less retentive of moisture in dry seasons. The decline in fertility, the failure to balance adequately the soil-depleting (clean-cultivated) crops with soil-conserving (hay-pasture) crops in the rotation; the lack of manure; and inadequate use of the commercial fertilizers under intensive cropping have contributed also to our soil erosion problems. We do not need to look far to see unmistakable evidences of the need for a province-wide program for soil conservation.

During these times of higher farm incomes, far-sighted farmers are investing surplus earnings in Victory Bonds, to create reserve capital for postwar adjustments and farm improvements. Money invested in Victory Bonds now will insure ready funds for future financing of individual soil-building programs and will contribute greatly to the stability and security of the farming industry.

SIXTY PLOWING MATCHES PLANNED

Interest in plowing matches is indicated by the list of local matches to be held this fall, issued by J. A. Carroll, Director of the Agricultural and Horticultural Societies Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Mr. Carroll expects that some sixty plowing matches will be held this year in various parts of the Province, and the interest of local plowmen's associations is at a high level. At most of these matches, there will also be exhibitions and demonstrations of labour-saving farm machinery and new types of machinery which is being developed as a result of wartime experience.

who have been using

MARKED GASOLINE

1. On and after October 1, 1945, gasoline will no longer be marked for special uses.
2. Marking of gasoline for special uses under the jurisdiction of the Oil Controller for Canada having been discontinued, the tax exemption purchase permit system is thereby ended.
3. Farmers, fishermen, guides and tourist outfitters will be entitled to claim refund of the Provincial Gasoline Tax where applicable. Claims, accompanied by receipted invoices, must be submitted to the Gasoline Tax Branch, Department of Highways, Parliament Buildings, Toronto within six months from date of payment of invoices.
4. A simplified method of assuring prompt payment of refunds, eliminating affidavits for each claim, has been worked out.

As there is no rationing of gasoline in Canada, marked gasoline, under the jurisdiction of the Oil Controller for Canada, has been eliminated, thereby ending the tax exemption purchase permit system.

To meet the desire of everyone to be relieved of wartime restrictions, the Provincial Government has developed a new system as free from controls and difficulties as possible. A simplified refund form has been prepared which eliminates the necessity of an affidavit being taken for each refund claim. This form may be obtained on application to the Gasoline Tax Branch, Department of Highways, Toronto, Ontario.

- The ending of marked gasoline sale removes difficulties made necessary by this wartime control.
- Complaints were made that marked gasoline was detrimental to the equipment in which it was being used.
- Records and reports necessary under the marked gasoline system will no longer be required.
- Extra storage facilities will be unnecessary for the separate storage of graded and marked gasoline with consequent saving to the consumer.

VALUED EMPLOYEE HONOURED ON LONG TERM OF SERVICE

A very enjoyable evening was spent at Villa Trent, Campbellford, Sept. 19, when Rutherford's Dairy was host to its employees and to do honour to Mr. Ernest Wilks, an employee, highly valued by the firm. Guests numbering thirty-two, including relatives of the guest of honour, sat down to a sumptuous dinner provided by Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Nelson.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a valuable wrist watch to Mr. Ernest Wilks who has been with Rutherford's Dairy for 20 years and has shared in its up and downs.

Mrs. Nelson, in addressing the company, pointed out the fact of Mr. Wilks' faithfulness to duty and loyalty to her during the years, as well as many humorous episodes which had taken place. Mr. Wilks, who was taken completely by surprise, thanked Mrs. Nelson for the gift and expressed his appreciation of her thoughtfulness and consideration.

Mr. Nelson, in a few well chosen words, spoke of the co-operation of management and labor, which other firms might well copy. Mr. P. Johnston, Mr. C. Milne and Mr. E. Milne addressed the gathering and voiced their approval of all that had been said about their fellow employee, Ernie. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Nelson for their hospitality.

Community singing led by Mrs. C. Milne and Mr. John Storie brought to a close a very delightful evening, after which all those assembled went to the theatre as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson—Campbellford Herald.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Karl Sine, Bob Sine, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hagerman, of Sine, and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sine, of Warkworth.

YOUTH 17, KILLED DUCK SHOOTING

Lloyd Speers, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Speers, who live about three miles east of Roseneath in Alnwick township, was fatally wounded in a shooting accident just east of Brighton, Monday afternoon. The youth with two companions, Bill Dunbar and Harold Stone, both of Brighton township and about the same age as Speers, were preparing to set out into Lake Ontario to shoot ducks when the fatal accident occurred.

THE CHALLENGE OF AN EMPTY PLATE*

* BEEF - 140,000,000 lbs. still to be shipped.

The United Kingdom and liberated Europe rely on Canada 225,000,000 lbs. this year.

We supplied only 85,000,000 lbs. to August 31.

* PORK - 100,000,000 lbs. still to be shipped.

The United Kingdom and liberated Europe rely on Canada for 450,000,000 lbs. this year.

We supplied only 350,000,000 lbs. to August 31.

* CANNED MEAT - 70,000,000 lbs. still to be shipped.

The United Kingdom and liberated Europe rely on Canada for 114,000,000 lbs. this year.

We supplied only 44,000,000 lbs. to August 31.

In most liberated European countries, there is a desperate shortage of meat.

As a great food-producing nation, Canada must, can—and will—help to meet the emergency.

The job will not be finished at the year's end. Food scarcities in Europe will continue until the next harvest.

This year, Europe is relying on Canada for a minimum of 789 million pounds of beef, pork and canned meat.

Up to the end of August, only 479 million pounds had been sent.

How soon can we bridge the gap?

Livestock marketings are normally at their heaviest in the last four months of the year.

If we are to help feed the hungry peoples of devastated Europe, this is the time to make our greatest effort.

To do our part, we must reduce our own consumption of meat and also assure that everyone in Canada gets a fair share.

That is why rationing is necessary.

MEAT RATIONING ADDS TO EVERYONE'S WORK

The producer who slaughters, the retailer who sells, the consumer who buys and eats—they all play a vital part.

AS A CONSUMER, HERE IS HOW YOU CAN CO-OPERATE

1. Try to plan your meat purchases before leaving home by determining what cuts you intend to buy and their approximate weights.
2. Make sure you have enough valid coupons and tokens to cover your proposed purchases by referring to the Consumer Coupon Value Chart and the Coupon and Token Calculator. Copies may be obtained from your Local Ration Board or Ration Branch.
3. Know the dates your "M" coupons become valid.
4. Do not buy more meat than you really need.
5. Avoid shopping at rush hours.
6. Be patient. Remember—your butcher may have inexperienced help.

THE WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD

War is Over But—

"The war is over in one sense only," said in part Canada's Minister of Finance, Hon. J. L. Isley. "It is over in the sense that the shooting has stopped. But the consequences of war are still with us." Likewise, on the same day in Ottawa the Co-ordinator of Food Administration of the War-time Prices and Trade Board, Kenneth W. Taylor, said in part: "The war isn't over for the hungry population of Europe. People there are still dying, not from bomb hits but from direct effects of the war, undernourishment, lack of fuel and clothing. And for them the war won't be over for several months." Both declarations were made in this capital in regard to the present food or rationing of food policy of the authorities on Parliament Hill.

Furthermore, considering that the scourge of starvation has driven nations as well as individuals to desperate actions, there is untold significance in the mere announcement given in this capital that the first conference of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization will be held in Canada on October 16th. This is the first new permanent body of one of the specialized new international agencies which will carry out the plans of the postwar period and its initial gathering on Canadian soil in the midst of the present great food crisis in the world as well as in this country will be watched closely.

Indeed, well-informed quarters on Parliament Hill believe that the importance of this gathering cannot be exaggerated at this time on account of the critical food situation. It is pointed out that in most parts of Europe food rations allow an average consumption of about 1700 calories a day and this is definitely below the need for ordinary health standards. In Canada, the average civilian consumption is about 3,435 calories and those engaged in heavy work may use over 4000 calories. Therefore, Canada, it would seem from views on Parliament Hill, is honor bound for political and humanitarian reasons to do her proper share in relieving a dangerous situation, especially when it is remembered that other nations, such as Britain, have already lowered their already reduced food rations with the hope of contributing a measure of relief to the great food crisis in the world. There are shortages in fats, oils, sugar, meats, etc., though this report should not be interpreted as taking any sides in the dispute over meat rationing in itself in Canada at the moment. Under the conditions, in general, rationing of certain items of food or other things in Canada now is due not merely to efforts in curtailing consumption but to equalize distributing for a time. At least, this is learnt in Ottawa as part explanation. Likewise, these conditions may cause a continuation in Canada of certain wartime food boards to carry on as long as necessary in order to help in the procurement and distribution of food produced here so that there may be proper co-operation with similar bodies in other lands of international commodity councils on the basis of multilateral agreements, all aimed to feed the masses of the Allies as well as Canada's own population.

Important Innovations

In tune with Canada's rapid growth as a nation amongst the nations of the world, there is an exceptionally strong interest backstage in Ottawa in the proposals of creating a legal status to the word "Canadian", though in the past citizens of this country have always been designated as "British subjects". For some time now there have been reports in Ottawa about meetings of officials of various Departments, such as possibly Departments of the Secretary of State, Justice, Immigration, and External Affairs, with the purpose being to study all legal angles of such an important change for probable action in Parliament at this session as well as any change in the actual procedure of becoming a citizen of this country, these involving extremely delicate and technical legal questions. Then again, the subject of a distinctly Canadian flag has also been raised now, though the Red Ensign seems to have been used a great deal lately, having been flown steadily on the Peace Tower over the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa during the present session. On "V-E Day" and "V-J Day" this Red Ensign was also flown extensively. For the past two generations this question of a distinct Canadian flag has been argued again and again. In fact, it has been debated in the House of Commons in Ottawa, and, when a committee had been formed to look into this question, there was so much disagreement that nothing ever came out of its discussions. However, it is a different story now and it is known in Ottawa that many legislators are anxious to provide a distinctive Canadian flag for this country as soon as possible.

Reason for 1948

In view of widespread curiosity why the year 1948 has been suggested as the time of attainment of proposals made at the Dominion-Provincial Conference for old age pensions of $30.00 a month for all over 70 years of age in Canada, information in this capital has disclosed that most of the figures or statistics put before the Conference were founded on the year 1948 since it had been merely considered that in this particular year full conversion from war to peace would be affected. However, it has also been hinted that it would be quite possible that it can come into effect sooner or as soon as the Federal and Provincial Governments reach an agreement on these proposals.

Procedure for Advertising

Representatives of advertising agencies placing beer advertising in Canada have just had a meeting in Ottawa with the Deputy Minister of Customs and Exercise, David Sim, as well as Arthur Merriam, who has had charge of the administration of PC 11374 which deals with the wartime alcoholic beverages order, with the result that a procedure has been decided for handling advertising from this source and five conclusions were reached at this gathering for facilitating such advertising in future.

Authority for Red Ensign

An Order-in-Council has been issued in Ottawa where authority has been given to fly the Canadian Red Ensign, used by the Canadian armed forces during World War II, over the Peace Tower of the House of Commons in this capital. Moreover, in this same Order-in-Council, it is pointed out that as far back as January 26, 1924, there had been an Order-in-Council granting such authority to fly this Canadian Red Ensign on all suitable occasions from all buildings owned or occupied by the Canadian Government.

Weekly Wind-Up

It has been revealed by an expert in Ottawa that, while there had been a reduction in the number of accidents in 1944 in Canada, yet there were 360,000 casualties in this nation's industrial field involving $39,800,000 for hospitalization, compensation, medical aid and pensions—Two reasons have been heard in this capital why Canadians will have to continue with their present short sugar supplies for a time. One reason is that normal sugar producing countries relieved from the enemy will not be in a position for between one and two years to produce regular sugar crops and another reason is that more sugar is now being sent to liberated countries than at any other time since 1939, though the people of these liberated countries are on a minimum sugar rationing system—David Heaps, son of the former Labor M.P. from Winnipeg, A. A. Heaps, has become the secretary to the C.C.F. leader, M. J. Coldwell, with the youthful Heaps being a veteran of this war as well as winner of a military decoration.

Hello, Homemakers! This year we have good reason to be truly thankful on Thanksgiving Day. The scarcity of luxury food items need not impair the success of your dinner. Good food well cooked will satisfy everyone. May we suggest a typical menu for you.

ROAST TURKEY

Stuff the bird with ample tasty dressing (four qts. for a 14-lb. bird). Place bird on one side of breast in roasting pan. Do not add any water. Roast in a pre-heated electric oven of 225 degrees, allowing 20 mins per lb. When bird is half-cooked, turn, baste and sprinkle with salt. Cover during later part of cooking period with lid or moist paper.

RELISH TRAY

Match-like strips of yellow turnips. Sliced radishes cooked in thin chutney sauce. Sliced cucumbers dipped in spiced beet juice. Green tomatoes sautéed in dripping.

GEORGIAN SWEET POTATOES

Cook 2 lbs. sweet potatoes for 30 mins. Drain, peel and mash. Add 4 tbsps. baking fat, 4 tbsps. molasses, salt and hot milk and beat smooth. Put in a casserole and heat in hot electric oven for 10 mins.

SAVOURY ONIONS

9 large onions, 1 tbsp. chopped green pepper, 1-2 cup grated old cheese, salt and pepper. Place the peeled onions in greased baking dish and add the listed ingredients. Cook in pre-heated oven of 350 degs. for 40 mins., or in a double boiler on top electric element.

PUMPKIN PIE

1-2 cups steamed and sieved pumpkin; 3-4 cup brown sugar, 1-2 teaspoons cinnamon; 1-2 teaspoon ginger, pinch of salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla extract. Beat the mixture thoroughly and when cool add: 2 well-beaten eggs, 2 cups thin cream or top milk. Line an extra deep 9-inch pie tin with rich pie crust; leave a fluted edge. Pour in the pumpkin to the top of the crust; it will shrink in baking. Bake in a hot oven 475 F. 10 minutes; reduce heat to 350 F. and continue baking another half hour or until a golden brown.

TAKE A TIP

1. Cut squares of fresh hot gingerbread and place on individual serving plates. Place a spoonful of hot or cold fresh applesauce on top and serve.

2. To make sure meringues do not become watery, roll sugar fine and sift small quantities into egg whites which have been beaten to frothy stage. Beat only until mixtures will stand in "peaks."

3. Cut slices of bread into shapes and toast slowly to tempt children who are convalescing.

4. For a Fruit Delight soften 1 pkg. gelatine; mash a banana and add to gelatine; stir in 2 cups hot fruit juice and place pieces of cubed fruit in mould when partially set.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. B. G. asks: Can you make a cottage pudding without sugar?

Answer: You can make a feathery plain cake without sugar and serve with a fruit juice sauce thickened with cornstarch and sweetened while hot with sugar substitute. Do not add too much (1-4 grain tablet for 1 tsp. sugar).

Mrs. D. M. asks: How do you prevent cauliflower from turning grey?

Answer: Prepare and soak in cold water to draw out any insects. Cook whole in a small quantity of rapid boiling salted water for 25 mins. only—or in small flowerets for 10 mins.

Mrs. S. N. says: Applesauce turns brown if it is cooked in a tarnished saucepan.

During the war 13,611 men and women came from the United States to enlist with the Canadian forces—60% of them in the RCAF. These thousands of young Americans who fought in Canada's army, air force and navy are eligible for discharge benefits amounting to more than $3,000,000.

Several outstanding weapons developed by Canadian scientists during the war were on the secret list at V-J Day. Among these are a sensational armor-piercing shell, a new 20mm anti-aircraft cannon and a water-proofing process for military vehicles which could virtually transform them into amphibious craft.

MOLLY'S SON

BY HARRY M. MOORE

A Story of Harness Horse Racing in the Early 1900's
(All Rights Reserved)

CHAPTER XIV

Summer was on the wane when Benny Bannerman left the city hospital and returned to his home in Holmesville. The birds were lining the telephone wires preparatory to going south, and the night he came back the wild geese were honking.

In the meantime Molly's Son had been out in Horse McKenny's field behind the barn, as Pat Warren had told him in one of her letters.

For just as Doc Brisco surmised, the little stallion had suffered a break in the first phalanx of his right leg and, while in time he would be able to use his foot and leg, he would never be able to race.

There was a place for him in the stud, however, and that was one consolation to the youth. Standard bred entries of Molly's Son's class were indeed few and far between.

Benny took his great loss philosophically and dreamed of the day to be. That he would drive again, and keep on driving, was a certainty. "Digging in" was not a vicious habit of a race horse that had to be trained out of him. It was something that could and did happen to the best of them. He had seen it happen once or twice on the Holmesville Speedway and he had heard several explanations of the cause. The most logical in his mind was that the victim was so keyed up to win at the time that he came down on his toes, instead of flat footed, which act threw him off balance and made him go head over heels.

Whatever the cause, horses would dig in a race. They would tumble and drivers would be hurt and bikes broken and there was nothing that could be done about it. Certain sure, he would keep on driving. Only an injury that could lay him up permanently would ever smother the fires of his ambition, his greatest zest for living.

If the injury to Molly's Son had been so serious that he would have had to be destroyed, it would not only have broken Benny's heart, but the hearts of T. B. Telfer and Bill Moran. Horse McKenny was less sentimental about the matter, for Horse had been in many spills. He had seen costlier accidents on the Grand Circuit than the one in Holmesville that late afternoon in July 1908. Benny had been lucky to come out of this one, however, with nothing worse than a broken leg and a slight concussion of the brain that left no serious after-effects.

The same day that Benny returned to Holmesville he limped slowly into the blacksmith shop. It was late in the afternoon just as work was slackening off for the blacksmith.

T. B. Telfer wiped his hands on his apron and came over and stood with a hand on the boy's shoulder. His eyes had taken in the lad's limp and his cane, but other than that Benny appeared to be in perfect health.

"It's sure great to see you," T. B. said. "The old place has not been the same without you. I've been working day and night and I don't seem to ever get caught up...."

"I'll be back to help you real soon," Mr. Telfer, Benny said. "The doctor says this leg will not be causing me very much trouble from now on, if I don't overdo it."

"And I've your cheque for you," T. B. said. "The judges gave you first money and turned back the five per cent they usually collect from winners. I suppose you won't be driving any more and that you'll be staying on here to finish your trade?"

"Mr. Telfer," Benny said, "I've fully made up my mind. I'm going to finish my apprenticeship and I want to be as good a horse shoer as you. Of course I'll be driving again. Guess it's in the blood, but I promise you I won't be on my own for some time yet—maybe three or four years...."

"Got another colt in mind, eh?" the blacksmith chuckled, and Benny said, "Yes, I guess so. One can never tell. Have you seen Molly's Son since the accident?"

"I'm sorry to have to tell you I have not," said T. B. "But I hear he's doing quite well out on the farm. You may be sure he is in fine hands and if Dr. Kendall's spavin cure doesn't help him, Horse will be trying some of his own. He's the darndest man for mixing up stuff that I ever saw."

"Did Doc Brisco ever tell you what the colt broke?" Benny enquired. "I haven't seen Doc Brisco to get his story. Is it true the colt is through?"

"I guess it's all too true, Benny," T. B. replied, "but Doc has so many fancy words for what's wrong that I don't follow him. He broke something in the pastern, the coffin joint or something."

Several days passed as summer made way for fall. It was early evening. Benny Bannerman and Pat Warren were on their way to pay their respects to the king of the colts.

They passed up McKenny's lane, around the barn, and leaned on the stake and rider fence. Molly's Son was over by the far side of the field but when Benny eased up on a rail and said, "Hey there, sonny boy," the stallion raised his head and looked his way. Benny whistled.

It was only when Molly's Son limped his painful way across that narrow field that Benny fully realized how seriously he had been injured; that the race days of this beautiful beast, who might have joined the charmed circle of two minute performers had he not been dogged by bad luck ever before birth, were gone forever and forever.

"The poor darling," Pat breathed with tears in her eyes, "never to race again, and—and he just loved it."

"Yes," Benny added thickly, "a true son of a true mother, with a heart as stout as oak, and as true as true. But—Benny broke and his face lighted. "There may be another, a son of Molly's Son....as good, if not better."

"Yes," Pat agreed dreamily, "a son of Molly's Son, and he may indeed be good, but never better—but never better than his sire."

The shades of night were beginning to fall when Benny Bannerman and Pat Warren, hand in hand, left Molly's Son, head over the fence, watching longingly after them.

When they reached the lane and looked back, he was still standing there, his black-as-night figure merging into the darkness that was growing around him.

"And when we come of age—" Benny turned to Pat, "we're going to get married, and we'll have a home of our own, and we'll have one of those new motor cars and a horse van, and I'll be taking the son of Molly's Son to the Grand Circuit, and you'll be coming with me."

And Pat reached up and kissed him. "That's worth any girl's waiting for," she said.

Fish Fancies

It's a pity that fish has been branded as "poor," but it's quite true that many good cooks fail in serving and cooking it. Fish is a delicate food that requires superlative cooking with no holdover between cooking and serving time. It takes but a little while to cook and authorities now recommend short cooking at high temperatures to seal in the succulent juices.

Fish and meat are both excellent foods, both are nourishing, both are "complete" protein foods and both are flavoursome menu additions. Fish (excepting the shellfish) are not as rich in iron as meat but this can be compensated by the addition of iron-rich vegetables—kale, spinach, or prunes, or raisins and cabbage salad, or by serving liver or kidney for dinner during the week. And here's a tip for the reducer's notebook. The calorie of meat is much higher than fish as meat is a "fatter" food.

Fish needn't be a "Just-on-Friday" dish. Frozen or canned, from river, lake or ocean, fish will be a favourite if it's artfully flavoured. Piquant sauces or tart lemon juice, enhance bland fish flavours. Chopped parsley and stewed egg yolk are colourful decorations for pale fish platters.

Contrary to the cooking rules, this fish recipe takes a little longer cooking to prevent the cheese sauce from curdling. It's a dandy casserole idea for a one-dish meal.

Fish Fillets Florentine

3 pounds spinach, 1-4 cup butter or other mild flavoured fat, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 2 pounds fish fillets.

Wash spinach in several waters and cook without adding water. When spinach is barely tender, drain and chip coarsely. Place in baking dish. Melt fat and blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and continue heating until cheese has melted. Pour sauce over spinach, place fillets on top and bake in moderate oven (275 degrees F) for 30 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

JUNIOR FARMERS FIELD DAY PLAN TO BE EXPANDED

Having made an outstanding success of two Junior Farmer Field Days held at Kemptville and Guelph in 1945, the Ontario Junior Farmer Association plans to broaden its activities in the field of sport and athletics in 1946. At an executive meeting held in Toronto this week, it was decided to hold four regional field days next summer, and there is a possibility that the winning softball teams and athletics in these regional meetings will come together for Provincial championship finals at some central point. The four regional meetings will be held at Kemptville, Presqu'ile Park, Guelph and Ridgeway, and in addition to boys' and girls' softball tournaments, will include a program of track and field athletics.

The Junior Farmer Association, in planning next summer's activities, is planning to have an important part in arranging events for the Canada National Exhibition when it is revived, probably in 1947. It is hoped that in that year regional sports and athletics meetings will be held at several points in Ontario, and the finals for the Provincial Championships being held at the Canadian National Exhibition as part of the programme for the Junior Farmer Day, if the co-operation of the C.N.E. management can be secured.

Canada's Department of Agriculture has been undergoing a barrage from Canadian soldiers stationed in the Netherlands and has had to call in army reinforcements to cope with it. The situation became drastic when the department had to examine more than 1,000,000 tulip bulbs sent by thoughtful soldiers to friends and relatives in Canada. Every one had to be inspected for disease and insects. Now the army is helping, and the tulip front has been restored to relative quiet.

Prior to Mutual Aid, the Canadian government provided the U.S.S.R. with a credit of $10,000,000 in September 1942 for the purchase of Canadian wheat and flour. Total Mutual Aid to Russia amounted to $120,914,000, 000.

A GOOD FARMER IS A GOOD PLANNER

It's the man who looks ahead who gets ahead.

GOOD management... essential to successful farming, as to any business enterprise... is largely a matter of timely marketing and careful spending... waiting for the time when it is most favourable to buy.

We all want things now... things we have not been able to get for the past several years. Some of these things are necessities... some are things that will contribute to our comforts and pleasures.

Eventually, these things will be more plentiful. By waiting a little longer we will help to keep prices of things we need at lower levels and we will buy at better advantage when we do buy.

Meantime we can invest our savings in the safest securities obtainable... Victory Bonds. More Victory Bonds will be offered this Fall. They pay 3% interest... double bank interest... and they are "liquid capital".

If we need cash in an emergency any bank will buy Victory Bonds at any time. And any bank will loan money on Victory Bonds.

The Ninth Victory Loan will be our last opportunity to buy Victory Bonds for a whole year, so buy double this time—the same rate of savings as in previous loans will pay for twice as many bonds over the 12 month period.

FARMERS CAN BUY VICTORY BONDS ON CONVENIENT DEFERRED PAYMENTS THROUGH ANY BANK

... just sign a short form letter which Victory Loan Salesmen carry (banks have copies) ordering the bank to buy Victory Bonds for you. Pay 5% when ordering and the balance at any time during the next 12 months. The interest the bonds earn pays the interest on the bank loan.

Questions and ?

Answers

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville.

Q. We plan on visiting the United States for two weeks. Do they allow Canadians to take food over? We plan to do our own cooking and had not intended bothering with ration cards over there.

A. There is a Board order which prohibits taking meat out of Canada without an export permit—regarding other items of food you may wish to take into the United States, we would advise you to contact the customs officer in your district.

Q. We are continually asked not to pay more than ceiling prices. At the same time people continue to sell at black market prices. Why are they allowed to do this?

A. No person is allowed to sell at prices above the ceiling set for the articles they are offering for sale. It takes two people to make a black market—both buyer and seller. If you are aware that black market prices are being charged at any particular place, you should report it at once to the nearest Board office. You may be sure that every complaint registered will be investigated thoroughly.

Q. How much sugar is used annually by brewing and distilling industries in Canada?

A. No sugar is used by the brewing and distilling industries in this country.

Q. I have to have special meat in my diet. Can I get more meat ration coupons for this year?

A. Yes, but you must have a doctor's or hospital's certificate which must state the amount of meat you will require for your special diet. This should be sent or taken to the nearest branch office of the Prices Board.

Q. We are being asked to retain labels and sales slips off any merchandise we purchase, in case there should be reason to complain about the high price or poor quality of the merchandise bought. How do I go about registering a complaint?

A. First you should do what you always have done—discuss any unsatisfactory merchandise with your retailer. If he feels it is in order, he will make an adjustment for you and take the matter up with his supplier. If, however, the retailer or his customer do not feel that they are satisfied with the results of the discussion they can give the facts to the local office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for a further check.

Q. Is it all right for me to tear off my meat coupons myself in the butcher shop, or should I leave this procedure to the butcher?

A. Ration regulations have always allowed a shopper to tear out his own coupons from her family's ration books just as long as she did it in the presence of the store clerk. It is against the law for a storekeeper to receive and for the shopper to hand in loose coupons which have not been torn from the ration book before the clerk.

Canadian war veterans who have been paralysed for life have formed an association to help out civilians in a similar plight. It will be known as the Canadian Paraplegic Association. As a clearing house for Paraplegic Association, it will provide paraplegics with training, education and suitable work.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SPRINGBROOK - BONARLAW BIBLE SOCIETY

Mr. Clayton Burkitt was elected president of the Springbrook-Bonarlaw branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society at its annual meeting, at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw, last Tuesday night. Other officers include Rev. R. M. Brownlie, Marmora, and Rev. J. R. Holden, Springbrook, vice-presidents; and Mrs. Wm. Barlow, Bonarlaw, secretary-treasurer.

Rev. F. B. Alnutt, of Toronto, district secretary, presented to the meeting some interesting motion pictures illustrating life in China, and the resourcefulness of her people in checking the Japanese invasion. China was fortunate he said in having two fine Christian leaders in the persons of Generalissimo and Madame Chiang-kai-shek. He saw in China a great opportunity for the circulation of the Scriptures.

Mrs. H. Mumby who has acted efficiently as the secretary of the local branch for several years reported that $85 had been collected for the Society's work in 1944, and over $60 this year. Mr. Holden, former president, thanked all those who had canvassed for the local branch. Appreciation for the heartening message given by the district secretary was voiced by Mr. Brownlie.

Little Johnny brought home his report card, and with it was a note from the teacher.

"Dear Mrs. Blank," said the note, "Johnny is a bright boy but he spends all his time with the girls. I'm trying to think up some way to cure him."

The mother studied the note, then wrote the teacher as follows: "Dear Miss Scruff: If you find some way to cure him, please let me know. I'm having the same trouble with his old man!"

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Observes 89th Anniversary

Large Congregations In Attendance at Morning and Evening Services on Sunday

After several weeks of preparation the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, celebrated the 89th Anniversary of the founding of the church on Sunday last. Rev. W. A. Cameron, D.D., of Toronto, was the special speaker at the morning service and in the evening, Rev. Donald McKay, of Burnbrae, occupied the pulpit. Special music by the choir added greatly to the interesting and helpful messages brought by the visiting clergy.

Large congregations were present at both morning and evening services, and it was most gratifying to those in charge of the arrangements to have friends from all parts of the community join in the celebration of another milestone in the history of St. Andrew's. The church was artistically decorated for the occasion with flowers banking the pulpit. The collections for the day amounted to approximately eight hundred dollars.

At the morning service, Dr. Cameron chose as his text, "In All Things Give Thanks," and delivered an inspiring Thanksgiving message. Rev. McKay chose, "A Poor Prayer," as his subject for the evening service and used the parable of the prodigal son as the basis of his remarks.

Throughout the entire services of both morning and evening, Mrs. R. H. Williams, presided at the console of the organ and was accompanied by Miss Muriel Thompson, of West Huntingdon, at the piano.

At the morning service they rendered the three movements of "Concerto in F Major," by Jean Williams, as a prelude, at the offertory and as a recessional, while the first two movements and "The Harp of St. Cecilia," by Auguste Wiegand, were most effectively rendered during the evening service.

The musical contributions by the choir included a selection by several girls, "The Whispers of Jesus," and an anthem, "O Clap Your Hands," by the choir in the morning and a duet, "Hark, Hark My Soul," by Mrs. Chas. Farney and Mrs. Roy Eggleton, and an anthem, "Father Lead Us" by the choir, in the evening.

To Speak In Interests of Hog Producers

In the interests of combining hog producers associations across the province into one organized body, Mr. W. E. Tummon, Foxboro, secretary treasurer of the Ontario Hog Producers Association, will speak over station CBL at eight-thirty, Monday evening, October 15th, it has been announced through the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture.

Support of the County Federation of Agriculture bodies throughout the province is being given toward forming a strong provincial hog producers association and working toward this end a series of 52 public meetings will be held across the province during the week of November 12th. During the meeting a vote of hog producers will be taken regarding their feeling toward the provincial organizations. It is expected that a hog producers association would be of greater numerical strength than the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, which has done so much for the cheese industry in Ontario.

Mr. Tummon will speak Monday evening on the advantages to the farmer of a strong hog producers' association in the province.

Mr. Claude Markell spent the week-end at his home in Wales.

Local Red Cross Needs Workers

Citizens Urged To Attend Weekly Meetings Friday — Quotas Must Be Filled

Workers are needed at the local Red Cross rooms on Friday afternoon of each week. Although hostilities have ceased, the work of the Red Cross remains unfinished and the quotas allotted the local branch must be filled. Any assistance given will be much appreciated. Won't you give an hour or two each Friday afternoon to this important work?

An appeal issued by the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society is as follows:

"We are now at peace, after a long and bitter struggle, during which this Society can be justly proud of its record in the alleviation of suffering and distress among those who, through no fault of their own were caught in the toils of war. I am sure that it is now the earnest hope of every human being that we are on the threshold of a new world. This hope can only be realized if every individual and every organization such as Red Cross is prepared to carry on and make the same effort and sacrifice in peace as in war.

"First we in Red Cross must finish the war. Our workrooms must continue, for suffering abroad is desperate and the need is still great. In our own motherland it must be difficult for them to realize, in many respects, that peace is here. Trains are daily bringing back our thousands of Canadian wounded. Red Cross hospitals must be built and operated, for their health and benefit.

"We finished the war high in the confidence of the world at large and our own people, an asset of incalculable value. Let us be sure we do not dissipate it."

85th Anniversary

Another milestone was passed in the history of St. John's Anglican Church, on Sunday, when the 85th Anniversary was fittingly observed. The Rt. Rev. John Lyons, M.A., D.D., Bishop of the Diocese, conducted a special rededication service of the newly-decorated church and was celebrated at Holy Communion, assisted by the Rector, Rev. C. C. Brazil, at the morning service.

The Bishop honored the members of the A.Y.P.A. especially, in their wonderful achievements, due to their concentrated efforts in connection with the Church rededication. Special music by the choir included the Anthem "Oh, How Amiable Are Thy Dwellings".

The evening service was taken by the Rev. N. R. Stout, Rural Dean of Leeds and Rector of Gananoque. His subject was the Church and the World Today. The choir favored the congregation with the anthem, "Saviour When Night Involved the Skies."

TO SAVE WAR SUFFERERS

● This is a good time for every Canadian to take inventory of his attic, basement, and clothes closet. What can you spare that some war-ravaged people can wear? Clean out your clothes closet. Rummage around your attic. And how about that old trunk in the basement? You need the space, they need your spare clothing. Give it now to the National Clothing Collection.

The local Chapter of the I.O.D.E. made a canvas yesterday in the Village and report a good response, but there are still those who have something to contribute to this urgent appeal. So bundle up those discarded garments and leave them at the local Agricultural Office before October 20. WHAT CAN YOU SPARE THAT THEY CAN WEAR?

CHURCH ANNIVERSARIES

● In recent weeks several of the churches of the district have been holding their Anniversary services and several more are scheduled for the future. In the rural sections these are events of great importance. In some respects they are like old boys' and girls' reunions. Not only do the people of the immediate vicinity attend, but former residents of the district come back home to attend the big event in their home church's year, the anniversary.

There is something encouraging about the interest taken in these events. When people will travel many miles to return to the church of their childhood days, at least once a year, it shows that the lessons they have learned in the old buildings many years ago have not been forgotten, that the religious teachings of those days have taken deep root in their hearts and minds.

Then, of course, there is the sociability and all-round good fellowship at the chicken suppers which accompany the anniversary in some instances. Some people preach the doctrine that such suppers are put on for the sole purpose of furnishing the churches with the required finances, and that if true religion were practised they would not be needed. With such an argument we have no particular fault to find, but these suppers do a great deal to promote harmony and good-fellowship in the congregation and community.

THEY DIDN'T HAVE TO DIE

● "They Didn't Have to Die." That is the name of a new film recently made for the Dominion Fire Prevention Association. It depicts the manner in which hundreds of Canadian citizens annually become needless victims of that great destroyer, Fire.

No, they didn't have to die in that manner but through carelessness and wanton neglect, the lives of 307 men, women and children in this Canada of ours were snuffed out by fire in 1944. Records compiled by the Dominion Fire Commissioner show that 23 small children lost their lives when left alone by their parents. Another 20 of the 118 children to die by fire last year were burned to death by fire originating in furnaces, stoves and heaters. A total of 76 people died as the result of fires in flammable liquids such as gasoline, kerosene, paint removers, etc. The largest loss of life occurred in dwellings, 110 in rural buildings and 114 in urban dwellings.

When will this needless sacrifice stop? Only when people become more careful in the handling of things that cause fires and when parents wake up to the fact that they have an unceasing responsibility to protect their defenceless little ones against the ravages of fire. Recent press reports contain such statements as the following. "It is believed the fire started when Miss W. tried to light the stove with gasoline, thinking it was coal oil," and another, "a regrettable accident occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. of H. when their son mistook gasoline for coal oil and attempted to light a fire with it." Why people persist in the use of coal oil—and sometimes gasoline—in the starting of fires, in the light of all the publicity which has been given this dangerous practice, is a question not easily answered. It is probably the old story of the "line of least resistance." It has been truly said that "fire is no great respecter of persons." It strikes at the high as well as the low when we let our guards down. Those guards consist of eternal vigilance and an application of common sense applied to fire prevention.

Canada earned undying glory in her prosecution of the war. Let not her good record be tarnished in the glorious days of peace to come by continuing to offer human sacrifices to the demon, Fire. Let our motto be, "ALWAYS BE CAREFUL OF FIRE."

SOUND AT HEART

● The other day an observer in England remarked, "The British came out of the war tired, cross and impoverished."

He was referring to the people of the British Isles.

If he were doing his observing here he might use a current wise crack and say, "The Canadians came out of the war tired, cross, period."

Such an observation might be justified. Located far from the scenes of battle, Canadian homes, factories, public services, remained intact throughout the war. Thus this country was able to satisfy the demands of a war-hungry machine. And in so doing, Canadian citizens earned money on a scale never equalled here before. Right now, in addition to holding several billion dollars worth of Victory Bonds, Canadian citizens have a total in savings banks accounts which is the highest in the history of Canada.

A critic might label us "cross and tired". But if he really knew us, he would not describe us as ungrateful or selfish.

Confirmation of our true national spirit will be forthcoming in the Ninth Victory Loan campaign. To provide for the civil re-establishment of our men who fought and to provide at least a little of the goods which impoverished people across the Atlantic must have to survive, our people will buy bonds as enthusiastically in the Ninth campaign as they did in the previous eight Victory Loan campaigns.

COMMENCE WORK ON NEW BRIDGE

HORSE STALLS BURN AT BELLEVILLE FAIR GROUNDS

Heavy damage, as yet unestimated, was caused in the Belleville Agricultural Society Exhibition Grounds Monday, when fire of unknown origin swept through approximately one-quarter mile of horse and cattle sheds. Fifty closed-in stalls used for trotting horses were destroyed by the flames as were several cattle sheds. The fire was checked by the Brockville Fire Department, hampered by muddy terrain, before it could ignite another block of cattle stalls.

A small quantity of baled hay was destroyed in the blaze. The stalls contained dry straw, an aftermath of the recent Belleville Fair, and city officials stated today that several small boys had been seen in the neighborhood. It is possible, they said, the youngsters had been smoking in one of the stalls.

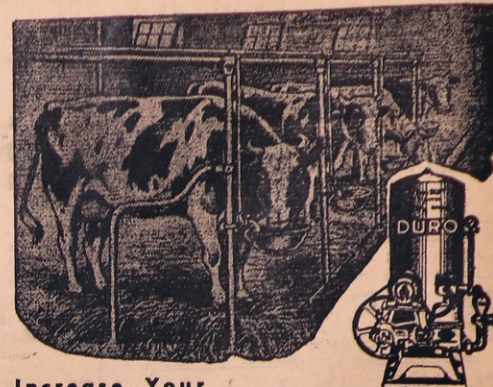

Parks Commission secretary, O. Pinkston, said today that the loss was covered by insurance.

THORNBURY DEFEATS BATAWA

Thornbury won the Ontario Intermediate "B" baseball championship, 1-0, after Franky (Smoky) Smith and Lefty Jack Garton had hooked up in their third brilliant pitching duel of the series. Thornbury won the first game in 12 innings, 3-2, and Batawa won the second tilt, a 13-inning affair, 5-0.

The two southpaws, claimed to be the best in intermediate circles, stole the limelight with their fine pitching. They struck out 104 men between them in the 34-innings series, with only two walks being issued.

In the third and last game Smoky struck out 21 batters and walked none. Garton whiffed nine and walked one. Each allowed four hits. Not an outfield fly was hit in the pastime. The game was won with an unearned

HYDRO provides fast, dependable "Made to order" SERVICE

Do you realize that Hydro power must be made to your order . . . made and delivered to you so quickly that it would seem to be always there? Electricity cannot be stored. It must be made within a tiny fraction of a second of the time it is used. The flow of water to the generators is controlled by sensitive automatic gates, so as to make only enough for the demands of the moment.

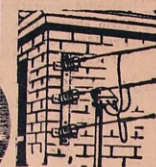

Whenever you flip a switch, you use electricity before the water which made it can leave the power house. Your order is received and filled faster than a good camera can wink its eye. Yet the power comes to you through a giant transformer station, a local distribution station, a small transformer near your home . . . all connected by many miles of transmission and distribution lines.

Millions of dollars worth of equipment and a multitude of watchful personnel stand ready to serve you at the touch of your finger on a switch at any moment of the day or night. That is what Ontario has learned to expect from Hydro service.

Queenston-Chippewa Generating Plant

Burlington Transformer Station

ONLY THIS ONE PART DEPENDS ON YOU

Your house must be adequately wired if you are to have full benefit from the electricity you may want to use. If your place is wired for a range and a water heater, you can assume that you have enough wiring from the small transformer to your house. From there, be sure that you have enough circuits and plenty of outlets conveniently placed in every room. Remember that any one outlet can supply only a limited amount of power efficiently and safely. Remember, too, that you will want an ever-growing number of electrical conveniences in the years to come. The economical time to wire adequately is when you are building or making major alterations. Plan now for your electrical future by wiring completely.

What Others Say!

STEPPING ON IT!

We had all but forgotten that "let's-go-places-and-do-things" feeling that comes from stepping on the accelerator, and having the engine respond with never a "nay" in its horsepower. In fact, we had almost come to call it muscle power, so delayed has been its reaction during these war years. "Stubborn", we said, "just because it can't have all the gasoline it wants." But it appears the poor thing was undernourished all the while—not enough octane content.

Now that it is getting back on its prewar plus diet—plus a higher octane rating—it responds eagerly to the touch of a toe. For the present, judging from the average age of most of our gasoline buggies it had better be a timid toe or the worn shoes won't be able to take it. But when new tires and new gasoline team up, watch our post-war dust!

—Christian Science Monitor.

Sweet Uses of Adversity

The gas and tire rationing made us get chummy and share rides. The swapping of rationed commodities such as butter and sugar revived the good neighbor spirit. And then the dearth of reliable help which one could hire temporarily made it impossible for some of us to get away on vacations without relying on our neighbors to feed the chickens, water the lawn and generally look after things while we were gone.—(From the Kitchener Daily Record).

One Housing Solution

The real remedy for the shortage of houses is to create more of them, not by the dozen but by the hundreds. The country has the labor—if only the armed forces will release it—the materials and the skill to build houses in very large numbers as it built ships, aircraft, motor vehicles and many other articles in volume during the war period, provided there is similar direction and co-ordination given to the effort, and the housing shortage will not be materially relieved until such construction is undertaken and completed.—(From the Brockville Recorder and Times.)

Mrs. Nickle took over the business last Friday and is in Toronto this week visiting the wholesale houses in order to increase the present stock.

NEWSPAPERS LIKE WOMEN

According to Modern Digest, Walter Winchell claims newspapers are like women.

They (newspapers and women) have forms, and back numbers are not in demand. They always have the last word; they are worth looking over and they have a great deal of influence. You can't believe everything they say, and there's small demand for the bold type. They're much thinner than they used to be. Every man should have one and not borrow his neighbor's.

Marks of Distinction

Girls have often been horrified at the sight of freckles on their faces, and yet we are told that most men regard them as signs of beauty. Now it has been proved by recent research that freckles are not blemishes but are marks of distinction. Ashton Chapman, writing in Vogue, says: "Freckles are not due to imperfect pigmentation nor to any other defect in a woman's skin. They result from several interrelated causes, from the secretion of the pituitary and adrenal glands. In experiments recently conducted, all freckled girls were found to have a high supply of Vitamin C, which gives glowing health and vitality. It is not a woman's coloring which causes her to freckle, but the activity of her glands."

PLANNING for TOMORROW'S FARMING

PRODUCTIVE PASTURES

By John D. MacLeod, Director, Crops, Weeds and Seed Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto

(NOTE—This is the third in a series of comments, written expressly for the Weekly Press of Ontario)

The progressive livestock farmer is always concerned with the problem of lowering the cost of producing livestock and livestock products without sacrificing quality. This can be accomplished by improving pasture which is our cheapest feed crop.

In addition to producing digestible nutrients at lower cost than any other crop on the farm, a well-managed pasture has the following advantages—it maintains livestock for five or six months of the year at low feed and labor cost; milk and beef are produced 50 to 75 per cent cheaper on pasture than under winter feeding conditions; pasture is digested 83%, hay only 52%; pasture is our cheapest source of protein—16 to 25%, which is about twice as much as that in the same grain cut for hay; no loss of food nutrients from curing, which in hay amounts to 40 to 50%; high in essential minerals which are easily assimilated from grass in the young stage, and in essential vitamins needed for efficient production and reproduction; pasture sod prevents soil erosion, adds fibre and organic matter and improves the soil structures.

Type of farming, soil and climatic conditions and length of time the field is to be left in sod are factors which must be considered when planning pasture crops to be sown. Where possible the mixture should contain some deep-rooted legumes which help to maintain soil fertility and drought-resistant grasses which will provide grazing during the dry summer period. A well-balanced mixture is recommended for the following reasons—grasses and clovers vary widely in their ability to withstand soil and climatic conditions, therefore when only one species is sown the results may be good or bad. Moreover, each species has its peak production period, and produces little in "off" seasons. By sowing a suitable mixture a thicker stand is obtained, and this naturally results in a heavier yield and more uniform grazing throughout the growing season. Cattle always prefer a mixture and thrive better on it than when grazing upon either grass or clover alone. The variety of herbage provided increases both palatability and nutrient value. There is less tendency for cattle to bloat, a condition which frequently occurs when they are grazed on legumes alone, than when grasses are included in the mixture with clovers.

Pasture crops may be divided into four groups—annual or supplementary pastures, one to two years; short term hay-pastures, two to four years; long term pastures, four to ten years; permanent or unworkable pastures which will remain in sod for an indefinite period. Rye, oats and sweet clover, and Sudan grass have proved best for annual or supplementary pasture. Sudan grass sown alone or in combination with Sudan grass have proved best for long term pastures. It is recommended that a few pounds of such seeds as Orchard grass and Parkland Brome be included, in order to add leafiness and feeding value to the hay crop and to make a thicker bottom for pasture. When planning a long-term pasture, it is advisable to sow only grasses and clovers which are persistent and remain productive over a period of years. Much heavier rates of seeding are also advisable in order to produce and maintain a thick stand. It is essential that the seed bed be in a high state of fertility, well drained, reasonably free from weeds and well prepared. A fine, firm seed bed will permit shallow seeding, maintain moisture and enable young seedlings to establish a firm root. Only adapted seed of good quality, high germination and free from noxious weeds should be sown.

The seed should be thoroughly mixed before seeding and should not be sown more than one-quarter to one-half inch deep on heavy soils and one-half to one inch deep on lighter soils. The most common and usually most convenient practice is to seed the mixture in the spring with a nurse crop, preferably of early oats and not too heavy.

To produce and maintain a good pasture requires a higher level of soil fertility than for most other crops. Moisture permitting, pastures grow from early spring to late autumn—five to six months of the year, hence they are continually drawing on soil fertility. When the fertility level drops, the clovers and the more productive grasses are succeeded by less desirable species and weeds. All pasture crops require nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. Nitrogen is essential for promoting the growth of grasses while phosphorus and potash encourage the growth of clovers, therefore if the pasture consists largely of grasses a high nitrogen fertilizer is advisable. If clover predominate, the fertilizer should contain high percentages of phosphorus and potash. Soil tests will indicate the relative amounts of each supply. Lime where required should also be applied. The best time to apply fertilizer on pastures is in late September and early October. The next best time is in early spring before seeding commences. Late spring and early summer applications seldom produce satisfactory results unless the season is very moist. One of the chief causes of poor pastures is low fertility. Five to ten loads of manure applied every two to three years will easily double the grazing capacity of a pasture.

In the case of fields which have been seeded to a short-term hay and pasture mixture, it will probably be found advisable not to pasture the new seeding until the following year unless the crop is unusually strong.

In the case of long-term pastures, grazing may be permitted eight to ten weeks after date of seeding; in fact, this is desirable as tramping of soil around young plants will assist them in establishing a strong root. Close grazing is recommended to prevent coarse growth and thus keep the herbage in as palatable and nutritious a condition as possible. If there is too much growth for the available live stock to graze uniformly or if it becomes weedy or patchy, it should be mown. Mowing when the grasses are just beginning to head out will promote an aftermath of tender nutritious herbage as well as prevent a coarse stand of mature plants. The livestock will consume much of the mown grass on the field.

Rotational grazing by dividing the field into sections will permit rotating the stock from section to section, and is sound practice. The electric fence provides an economical method of controlled grazing. Do not graze too early in the spring or too late in the fall, and do not undergraze in June or overgraze during July or August. The idea to aim at is not to graze the pasture any faster than it grows. The practice of turning cattle out in pasture when the sod is soft and before the sward becomes established may result in hoof damage and pulling out of young plants, and should therefore be discouraged.

The pasture should never be eaten bare, and should go into the winter with at least three to four inches of top growth. It should be harrowed in the spring and again in the fall to spread dried manure, clear away the dead grass and aerate the roots, using the chain harrow to drag harrow turned upside down. Open ditches and drains should be cleaned out in the fall in order to remove surface water.

The purchase of Victory Bonds and the establishment of more productive pastures are investments which will prove profitable for the individual farmer.

OFFER FREE PLANS FOR ROOT CELLAR

Although there are many effective ways of storing root crops on the farm, the root cellar has proved one of the best, particularly in districts where low temperatures are common. A root cellar is not costly to build, and what outlay there is will soon be repaid in the saving of roots and vegetables from loss and wastage through moisture and decay. Old lumber and materials at hand may be utilized.

To the farmer who has a root cellar, the time has come once more to make certain that the ventilating system will be in working order during the coming winter. To the farmer who has not a root cellar and is thinking of making one, the Dominion Department of Agriculture has made available publication 708 entitled, "A Practical Root Cellar." In it are specifications of plans for a farm root cellar, ground floor side and front elevations, together with information and directions as to material, location, temperature, humidity, and ventilation. A copy may be obtained by writing to Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

QUALITY CHEESE FROM COLD MILK

The discovery that vigorous agitation of warm cheese milk would induce the development of rancid and unclean flavour defects in cheddar cheese was reported recently by the Division of Bacteriology and Dairy Research, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture. This research work has been extended to an investigation of various types of agitation such as might be encountered in the commercial handling of milk. In general, all types of agitation of warm cheese milk were found to be detrimental to cheese quality. As the temperature at which milk is agitated the flavour defects decrease in intensity; in other words, cheese of higher quality was obtained. In addition to scientific considerations, this research work is another reason for cooling cheese milk for the production of high quality cheddar cheese.

WEAK BEE COLONIES

Where the beekeeper has a few colonies too weak for successful wintering and headed by young queens that he does not wish to destroy, the following plan of wintering has proved successful, says C. B. Gooderham, Dominion Apiarist. Around the end of September, remove five of the lightest combs from each of the weak colonies and push the other five frames to one side of the hive, thus forcing the bees to cluster on these combs. Two days later, place a tight-fitting division board in the centre of half the hives and bring the combs and the bees from the other hives and place them on the opposite side of the division boards. Thus in each hive, there will be two weak colonies. Provision must be made for a double entrance. The main advantage of this method is to have a number of spare queens to replace any that may be falling or are lost.

50,000 MORE MEN WANTED IN WOODS

Owing to the extra demands for forest products, special emphasis has been placed on the appeal of the Minister of Labour for 50,000 additional men to reinforce those now engaged in operations in the woods. Every man on the farms who can be spared after the harvest has been finished is required, and men in the cities are to be canvassed. This year the woods operations are of more national and international importance than ever. With an adequate force of workers in the woods all over Canada, home building in the Dominion will be helped next year to a large extent by the cut of sawlogs in the woods during the coming winter.

The pulp and paper industry, which fulfils the very important function of producing paper for Canada's great export trade and also for home consumption, will require a heavy cut of pulpwood, while the reconstruction of Britain and Continental Europe will call for huge quantities of lumber and Canada is expected to meet a large part of these demands.

Several of the staff from the British War Office touring Canada with Mulberry the model of the floating port that liberated Europe have been associated with the scheme since its first beginning three years ago.

WE'LL HAVE THE MONEY to pay the BILLS

LIKE thousands of other Canadians, farmers will welcome the 9th Victory Loan as another opportunity to save money to provide for future plans.

Victory Loans have provided an excellent means of helping the war effort, at the same time contributing to our own personal welfare.

Canada needs more money now . . . to make loans to foreign countries so that they can establish credits which will enable them to buy food and other things which they require.

This food will come from Canadian farms; these goods from Canadian factories. When we help to create markets for our farm produce abroad . . . and when we help to keep Canadian factories busy . . . we help to maintain good prices for the things that Canadian farms produce.

Victory Bonds also provide a reserve fund of working capital for our own use . . . so handy to have so many times. Any bank will buy Victory Bonds at any time, or loan money on Victory Bonds if we need cash.

. . . and for our future plans, we'll have the money required for things we want to do . . .

Get ready to buy more Victory Bonds this Fall. Buy double this time—the same rate of savings as in previous loans will pay for twice as many bonds over the 12 month period.

Farmers Can Buy Victory Bonds On Convenient Deferred Payments Through Any Bank

... just sign a short form letter, which Victory Loan Salesmen carry (banks have copies) ordering the Bank to buy Victory Bonds for you. Pay 5% when ordering and the balance at any time during the next 12 months. The interest the bonds earn pays the interest on the bank loan.

West Huntingdon

Huntingdon citizens observed the Thanksgiving Holiday over the weekend. The churches in the district heard special messages on Thanksgiving on Sunday and on Monday, the rain assisted in giving some a holiday.

Reverting back to old time did not make any difference to the usual farmers routine of farm work, for they generally have to work from daylight until dark. Eight hour day has always been observed—eight in the forenoon and eight in the afternoon.

The one sure thing about farming is that there is nothing sure about it, and although many organizations are staging strikes, the farmers here, instead of sulking and complaining have in this most perplexing year, worked harder than ever, and are most grateful that we are as fortunate as we are.

Y. P. V.

The Young People's Union met at the parsonage on Friday evening with the President, Russell Sills, presiding. Arthur Hassall read the lesson and Mr. Clifford Elliott gave the special topic. Miss Joan McCurdy contributed a solo and Miss Joyce Wallace a reading; Miss Marjorie Wright conducted a contest.

More Select Hogs

Ontario farmers have established a record for supplying a higher percentage of Select grade hogs than any other Province in Canada. There's a reason for pride in such a reputation, for Ontario hogs are going overseas as fast as they can be produced, and the reputation of Canadian producers will stand or fall on their performance.

Ontario farmers know that Select hogs are produced through good management and good feeding. Healthy litters, from good breeding stock, and fed balanced rations, will grade out a far greater percentage of Grade A carcasses than will scrub stock, haphazardly fed. Good feeding is playing an increasingly important part—and SHUR-GAIN Hog Grower, the balanced feed for growing better hogs, is becoming outstandingly popular with wise farmers.

SHUR-GAIN Hog Grower is made of good quality animal proteins, vitamins and minerals, for fast economical growth, and lower costs of production. You'll be sure of healthier, stronger litters, and better marketing results, when your hogs are fed tasty, palatable SHUR-GAIN Hog Grower. It's the Fresh Hog Grower, made by your local SHUR-GAIN Feed Service Mill.

RIVER VALLEY S. GROUP

Mrs. H. Beatty in her usual good style and gracious manner was hostess to 13 members and 4 visitors of the River Valley Study Group. After singing, "I am Thine O Lord", and prayer by the Pres. The usual business was conducted on Temperance and Mrs. M. Vandervoort, one on Peace, from the "Church Observer". Reports of cards, calls and flowers to the hospital were given.

Mrs. Ross Bush who was Prog-Convenor opened her part of the meeting with hymn, "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me" and then read Scripture Lesson, Psalm 90. Mrs. Geo. Heasman completed the Study Book. Mrs. Bush then dealt with the life of hymn writers in an interesting way taking Mrs. Cecil Alexander and Isaac Watts for special study. Hymns which they wrote were sung in part,—"Jesus calls us o'er the Tumult" and "When I survey the Wondrous Cross."

Mrs. Utman gave a reading, "There Will Always Be God." A visitor read the following, "The Church vs The Movies."

"A writer in the Chicago Daily News recently tore the mask from the reasons given by some persons for not attending services, by using those same reasons against going to the movies. This was his method:

"I'm out of habit of going to the movies; I better not go tonight."

"I have not been to the movies for so long the walls would fall in if I went."

"I know a man who has gone to the movies for years, and he is no better than I am."

"There are as many good people outside the movies as inside."

"Too many hypocrites attend the movies."

"I stay away from the movies because of the kind of folk who support them. I would not sit in the same room with Mr. So and So."

"The performer gets more money than I do. Why should I help keep him in a good car and fine clothes?"

"I do not like the people in charge of the movies."

"I stay away from the movies because I went so much when I was a child."

"I need new clothes before I can go to the movies."

"I have a friend visiting me, and I do not know whether he likes movies or not; I never meddle with a man's private opinion."

"I do not go to the movies, because directors never call on me."

"I do not go to the movies, because when I went the last time, no one greeted me."

After singing another of Isaac Watts' Hymns, "Oh, God Our Help in Ages Past", the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Utman. Mrs. Roy Bush will prepare the Programme and start the New Study Book on Africa. Mrs. Beatty served a delicious lunch and then all spent the usual social half hour among the beautiful flowers. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the hostess.

Doris Twiddy read a story entitled "The Wrong Way to Do It." A reading called, "I know Something Good About You" was given by Eleanor Reid and a story from the World Friends was enjoyed by all. The meeting then came to a close by repeating the Mizpah Benediction. A lovely lunch was served by the hostess and everyone thanked her for her kindness.

Primary Purpose

It would be putting it mildly to report that the departure of the head of the Canadian Government, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, for the United Kingdom and Western Europe has aroused very deep interest in international affairs of the moment on Parliament Hill where there are "hints" in usually reliable circles that there is considerable dissatisfaction not only in Ottawa but in other capitals of the various Dominions about the procedure being used in creating terms for ultimate peace settlements. However, there is unusual emphasis on the point that the recent meeting in London of the foreign ministers of the United States, United Kingdom, Soviet Russia, China and France was only a gathering to draft merely certain proposals for peace settlements but it was not authorized to conclude such settlements. This is very important, indeed, if misunderstandings are to be avoided about the much publicized poor results of this meeting of the foreign ministers. In other words, it appears in Ottawa as if the visit abroad of the head of the Canadian Government may be concerned not only with common interests on the home fronts of the Motherland and this country, such as defence, employment, trade, etc., but also common, pressing interests of the Motherland and this nation on the international scene, especially involving measures used to win the peace.

But—

Somehow there seems to have been created an impression outside this capital that the end of the war would bring an end of heavy governmental expenditures in the coming year, with resultant lowering of taxation scales. However, official information indicates in no doubtful language now that for the coming year anyhow the post-war expenditures will be about the same as the war years. In fact, Canada's expenditures during the current fiscal year ending March 31 next will be over $5,000,000,000 and for the twelve months period from October may be close to $4,000,000,000, with the war expenditures and demobilization bill being no less than $3,365,000,000. In other words, while war expenditures of a direct kind may be down yet post war costs are not small figures in comparison. Then again, the Government intends to use vast sums of money to help finance foreign powers in purchasing supplies in this country during the coming year, to make a contribution of $77,000,000 to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, to pay war service gratuities, rehabilitation credits for the armed services, family allowances, and interest on the public debt. In estimating the significance of these payments, it is clear that for the coming year the expenditures may not be far away from the levels of the war years so that the average taxpayer er cannot expect great financial benefits of peacetime in the coming months anyhow, though there are hints that in other directions the official demands on goods as well as services may decrease rapidly and the civilian production may receive benefits normal peacetime periods. Of course, tax reductions are on the way and these would be in tune with the reduction in expenditures in time. It is also noteworthy to observe that the heavy total expenditures are expected to help the general employment situation in Canada in the coming months in face of the demobilization and reduction of war production, though the government is providing a relatively small sum of only $5,000,000 for government reconstruction projects during the next six months to facilitate the process of readjustment of employment, with the remark that between the lines of some statements on expenditures or costs as well as sudden unemployment of a temporary nature there has been a steady reference in official circles to "the unexpectedly early end of hostilities against the Japanese."

Heavy Task Ahead

Judging by the programme facing Parliament, the legislators in Ottawa will be extremely busy in the next few weeks and their tasks will not be easy by any means on account of the vast amount of legislation to be examined as well as passed upon by the people's representatives. The programme of measures may even be considered to be of the most important type which the legislators have had to deal with in this first peacetime session. Moreover, controversial issues are bound to arise and heated discussions are awaited with great interest by experienced observers of the parliamentary scene. Amongst the important measures to be brought into the House of Commons in Ottawa are included the famous Bretton Woods monetary agreements, the United Nations Charter, the International Civil Aviation agreement, the subject of Canadian Nationality, veterans' charter, a Canadian Flag, and others, with the list being quite formidable.

Personal Meetings

It is indicated in the capital that Premier King's visit abroad in the midst of the present session of Parliament is due to a desire on the part of the head of the Canadian Government not only to see "on the spot" some of the aspects of the international scene of the moment but to discuss face to face a number of affairs with Premier Attlee, Foreign Minister Bevin and other top men in Britain as well as elsewhere, starting with his brief visit to Washington while on his way overseas.

Somewhat Similar

The Minister of Finance, Hon. J. L. Halsey, has revealed in Ottawa that the United States, like Canada, will do everything in her power to provide for the liberated countries, with this assertion being made to point out what the United States has in mind in regard to rationing of meat since rumors had circulated for a long time that Washington planned to eliminate meat rationing and criticisms had been directed at Ottawa for not following the same road. "Any official information that we have been able to get indicates that the United States intends to look at the matter in the same light in which we are looking at it and to continue to make available to the extent of its ability the food and other supplies required by the liberated areas," he said in part.

Smaller Majority

As a result of the early tests of strength of the Government's majority in the House of Commons, it has been shown that for the first time during the last three Parliaments, the Government's overall majority in this 20th Parliament is much smaller since in two recent tests of strength in voting these majorities were as low as 27 and 25. The present Government has at least 128 sure supporters out of the 245 members in the House of Commons, with 117 members belonging to the true principal political groups and nine independents. In other words, the nominal overall majority of the Government in this 20th Parliament appears to be only 11 votes and this is a sharp contrast to the overwhelmingly large majorities in recent years.

Bold Ways To Better Days

By R. J. DEACHMAN

Sometime ago I received a letter from a farmer in Western Canada. It was winsome, bright, humorous, yet carried its subtle sting to the roots of the follies of today. I wrote and asked for permission to reproduce it. His answer was: "Go ahead, but of course, if it should be taken seriously and put into effect the sin will be on your own head."

Now no one knows when a government may be moved to speedy action or how quickly a suggestion, made in jest, might be lifted by one of our Junior parties and become a permanent plank in a political platform but here's the letter—I take the chance:

The New Program

"I am sending you another pamphlet in 'The Behind the Headlines' series. As I was reading it the thought came to me that somebody ought to offer a prize for the best Utopian suggestion for the future security of the race. The points to be considered in awarding the prize should be:

- (1) The pleasure its votaries would get from contemplating the great good it would do to humanity.
- (2) The simplicity and smoothness, with which it could be introduced, extended, reduced or abandoned as developments required.
- (3) The visibility of its effect on the economy, so that the people will be able to see for themselves how it works out.

"I will not consent to be one of the judges because I intend to enter the contest. I have a suggestion to make, here it is:

"Let every housewife, who wishes to do so, hire a maid, and let every householder, who wishes to do so hire a man to look after the painting, repairing, gardening, etc. Let the government pay all these workers and also pay the housewife for boarding them. Of course wages will have to be standard, and hours of work limited.

"I think this is a wonderful scheme. It would require 'no capital investment' to set these people to work. It would not shift the population from one centre to another and so it would create no housing problem. If the house of a would-be employer was too small to accommodate this extra help the householder might be allowed to hire his own wife to keep house for him, while she hired him to light the fires and carry out the ashes. As times improved and other jobs became available men could then quit these domestic jobs and take on others more to their liking.

"P.S. My wife now points out that, from a women's standpoint, it is perfect—cooks get more pay than furnace men—why should I care the government's paying for it anyway?"

Another Viewpoint

In the same mail came a letter from a lawyer in Saskatchewan. He is not in politics but he is a keen shrewd judge of economic problems. He writes with the maturity and wisdom of a man of experience. He looks forward to future progress in human affairs, not by miracles, but by the increase of understanding, the development of the capacity for straight thinking:

"People failed to think ahead and to appraise, shrewdly, the almost inevitable end of dictators. A wise man should have known that Hitler, at the very zenith of his power, had set in motion forces that would destroy him and, in the process, bring untold misery to the world. Those who trusted him most will now be the loudest in his condemnation. Their ever-ready excuse is that they did not dream that Hitler would do what he did. In the domestic field, political as well as economic, the same short-sighted reasoning is pursued. One of the greatest gifts God could bestow upon any people would be the ability and the desire to think before, rather than after the event. Look back over the tragedies and mistakes which could have been averted if only people had been willing to consider the steps they were taking and the probable consequences of their thoughtless actions."

Here are two views, the cynical and the serious—both will be needed if we are to retain our sanity as we move, from war conditions, back again to the problems of peace.

After a woman driver ran into a telephone pole and bent a fender she went to a garage and asked the mechanic: "Can you fix up this fender so that my husband won't know it was bent?" The mechanic looked at the bent fender and then at her, and said, "No, I can't, but I'll tell you what I can do. I can fix it up so that in a few days you can ask your husband how he bent it!"

Hello, Homemakers! If you have not accomplished all the canning and preserving you planned to do this summer, make the most of autumn fruits and vegetables. Let the tang of home-made pickles and the aroma of steaming sautes and simmering fruits fill your house with autumn goodness.

If you have followed The Mixing Bowl you have already read our canning instructions. Just one repetition—keep jars covered with boiling water during the processing of foods in a water-bath.

If you are fortunate enough to have a freezing locker nearby, by all means use it. The plant manager will provide an instruction booklet on preparation of food to be frozen. Oven-drying is a form of food preservation and is not difficult if you have a well-insulated oven. Vegetables must be pre-cooked and dipped in a commercial preservative solution. You can do other things while your oven is filled with drying food, but you cannot go away and leave it. If you decide to try your hand at home drying, send for instructions.

GREEN TOMATO RELISH

1 gallon green tomatoes, 1-2 cup salt, 1-2 medium cabbage, 3 sweet red peppers, 3 medium onions, 6 1-2 cups vinegar, 1 tsp. celery seed, 1 tsp. mustard seed, 1-2 tsp. whole cloves.

Put tomatoes through food chopper, using coarse blade. Combine with salt and let drain overnight in cheesecloth bag. Add cabbage, peppers and onions, also put through food chopper. Mix vegetables together and add vinegar, sugar and the spices (tied in a bag). Cook over low heat until vegetables are tender—about 26 mins. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes 6 to 7 pints.

DILL PICKLES

Cucumbers 3 to 4 inches long are best for dill pickles. Wash, prick with a fork and soak overnight in cold water. Drain, dry thoroughly. In the bottom of sterilized sealers place a piece of dill. Pack cucumbers in jars. Put more dill on top. Prepare the following pickle mixture:

2 cups vinegar, 1 cup salt, 2 1-3 quarts water. Bring to boil. Pour over the cucumbers while hot. Let stand about 6 weeks before using. Yield: 4 to 5 quarts.

CHILI SAUCE AND COCKTAIL FROM ONE RECIPE

18 large tomatoes, 2 onions, 1 head celery, 4 tbsps. sugar, 3 sweet red peppers, 3 sweet green peppers, 2 tbsps. salt, 1-2 cup vinegar.

Boil all together 20 mins., then turn into a colander. Strain without stirring. Return juice to kettle and boil 5 minutes. To the solid pulp add 1 cup vinegar, a small piece of ginger, 8 cloves and 1 stick cinnamon (spices in muslin bag). Boil until thick. Pour into hot jars. Seal. Yield: About 3 pints chili sauce and 3 pints juice.

TAKE A TIP

1. Pickle small whole green tomatoes if you have sugar for pickling syrup. Cook in boiling salted water for 10 mins. Let stand overnight on tray to drain off surplus water. In the morning cook in spiced pickling syrup for 10 mins. Lift into sterile jars; fill with syrup and seal.

2. Use ordinary salt instead of iodized salt for pickling.

3. Use only one-half of amount of sugar with a substitute such as corn syrup or honey.

4. Use synthetic sweetening when the food is hot and does not have to be boiled.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. R. T. asks: Recipe for Barbecue Sauce.

Answer: 2 quarts ripe tomatoes, 3 large onions (chopped), 4 sweet red peppers (chopped), 2 carrots (scrapped), 3 cups vinegar, 1 cup water, 4 tbsps. brown sugar, 2 1-2 tbsps salt, 2 tps. allspice, 2 tps. cloves, 2 tps. cinnamon, 2 tps. nutmeg, 2 tps. ginger, 1-4 tsp. cayenne. Cut tomatoes into pieces (do not peel), mix all ingredients together and bring to a boil. Cook for 1 hour, or until soft enough to pass through a sieve. Strain and bottle. Yield: 4 pints.

Mrs. D. B. asks: What causes peppers to become bitter when baked?

Answer: Perhaps they had not been parboiled 2 mins. before they were stuffed for baking.

Mrs. J. C. suggests using fruit syrup in place of milk or water in making salad dressing.

PLANNING for EXPANSION OF RURAL TELEPHONE SERVICE

To keep step with farm progress and to extend service to more farm families, the telephone industry is working on important new devices and methods.

Plans are already under way for resuming the rural telephone expansion program suspended in 1940, when equipment and material became urgently needed for the armed forces. Surveys are being made to determine the needs and to provide the facts for carrying out plans to expand farm telephone service.

The goal is to bring the telephone to the greatest possible number of farm families.

Hog Producers of Ontario To Vote On Marketing Plan

Hog Producers in every county of Ontario will have an opportunity, during the month of November, to vote by ballot on whether or not they wish the adoption of a province-wide Hog Marketing Scheme under the Farm Products Control Act to go into effect. It is announced by Hon. Thos. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture. The proposed hog marketing scheme, which would be by far the largest yet developed under the Farm Products Control Act, has been submitted to the Farm Products Control Board by the Ontario Hog Producers Association, and in accordance with the terms of the Act, the Board has made the necessary arrangements to take a vote of the producers in the matter to ascertain their wishes in the matter.

On account of the widespread nature of the hog producing industry and the large numbers involved, one estimate being 100,000 in the Province, the taking of the ballot becomes a project of major dimensions, and the Farm Products Control Board has called in the assistance of the Agricultural Representatives in each of the 42 counties in old Ontario. For the purpose of the vote, a register of all hog producers in each county will be compiled, and the farmers in that category are required to register with their county agricultural representatives, either by sending in by mail their names, addresses and townships, or by calling at the agricultural representative's office. Only those whose names appear on the official register for each county will be eligible to vote, and the onus rests on the producers to see that their names are on the lists.

In order to have the scheme thoroughly explained, and an opportunity provided for registering and voting, public meetings will be held in every county of the Province during the week of November 12. These meetings will be open to all hog producers and ample opportunity will be provided for a free expression of views on the proposed scheme, which will be explained in detail by a representative of the Hog Producers Association. Registrations will be accepted at the meeting, and at the close of balloting will be made possible for all who wish to vote at that time. Ballots may also be sent in to the office of the Agricultural Representative at any time during the voting period.

So that every hog producer will have ample opportunity of expressing his views on the proposed scheme, registrations will be accepted by the Agricultural Representative in each county up to ten days after the public meeting. Every producer who registers will receive a ballot paper, and signed ballots will be accepted by the Agricultural Representative up to and including Saturday, December 8th, 1945. After that date, no further ballots will be accepted.

In the counties of Kent, Middlesex, Lambton, Huron, Perth, Bruce, Grey, Wellington, Simcoe and Renfrew, two public meetings will be held, and in all other counties there will be one meeting. The place and date of each meeting will be arranged by the Agricultural Representative, and will be announced by advertisements in the daily and weekly press. Where there is a County Agricultural Committee, the chairman of that Committee will act as chairman at the meeting, and where none has yet been organized, those present at the meeting will elect their own chairman.

The vote by ballot is being taken under the jurisdiction of the Farm Products Control Board, of which G. F. Perkin, Ontario Commissioner of Marketing is chairman.

FIRE PREVENTION NEEDED ON FARM

Today the whole world is clamoring for food. The war has left food stocks in liberated countries in a very exhausted condition and Canada, along with the other United Nations, is expected to provide its share of the world's breadbasket. Food cannot be supplied from the ruins of burned barns. It may be of interest to know that farm fire losses amounted to over $3,000,000 in Canada last year in nearly 250 fires and that during the last 10 years such losses amounted to nearly $29,000,000 in 41,000 fires. Every effort is being made by the government to harvest this year's crops by the use of members of the armed services to make up for the manpower shortage on our farms. Why then permit these precious crops to go up in smoke?

Records show that there are eight major causes of farm fires. These may be listed as follows: defective chimneys and flue sparks on combustible roofs, lighting, spontaneous ignition, lightning, matches, gasoline or kerosene, heating equipment and electrical wiring.

Threshing operations are another hazard. All these causes may be eliminated by the application of ordinary fire prevention principles.

Much can be done to reduce the hazards of a conflagration by proper construction and proper spacing of farm buildings. Farmers as a rule being pretty well isolated should provide some form of fire protection in the way of pails or barrels of water, hand pumps, extinguishers and ladders.

There is too a growing tendency toward the provision of fire protection on a community basis. This may be accomplished by either the establishment of a rural fire department or by entering into an agreement for protection on a fee basis with a neighboring town or city.

In an event, if we are to fulfil our responsibility of helping to feed the world and at the same time providing sufficient for our own needs, we should take no chances whatever with fire on our farms.

The Road Ahead

A Column for Service People

This week's column answers some of the frequently asked questions about who to see in connection with various phases of rehabilitation.

I would like to apply my Re-establishment Credit to the setting up of a small business. Whom should I contact in this matter?

You must write to, or visit, the nearest district office of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, since in the final analysis it will be this Department which will approve or disapprove your application. Of course, sound commercial advice can be obtained from any of the hundreds of Citizens' Committees throughout Canada, or your local Chamber of Commerce, or Better Business Bureau. On the whole, however, the DVA will be found to have the most comprehensive machinery for investigating all the circumstances connected with your case.

How do I go about getting a home under the National Housing Act?

Secure a Questionnaire from a branch office of the National Housing Administration or one of the approved Lending Institutions, and answer fully all the questions therein. When your application has been approved, see or write to, the District Supervisor of Reestablishment Credit at the nearest office of the DVA. You must do this in order to get the proper authority for the expenditure of your Credit.

In the event that I do not wish to take advantage of the NHA, whom do I see about building a home with my Credit?

The District Supervisor of Reestablishment Credit at nearest office of DVA. Only from him can come the authority to use your credit, and if the authority is not given, the DVA will accept no responsibility for expenses incurred.

What is the process by which I obtain whatever licenses are necessary for me to operate my own business?

See the local office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. If you have satisfied them that your business has a good chance of succeeding, they will show you how to obtain a business license. They will also give you sound advice about the method for getting the supplies you need to set up your stock. Local Citizens' Committees, or Chambers of Commerce, or experienced friends will give you information regarding permits, licenses, etc., required in your locality. (If you have a problem write to Rehabilitation Information Committee, Wartime Information Board, Ottawa.)

Films supporting the National Victory Loan are being shown on National Film Board Industrial Film Circuits this month.

Hasty Pee's Given Welcome at Belleville

Belleville was on fete on Thursday last as the two counties and hundreds from other cities and districts welcomed home the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment from overseas. There were jubilant scenes as the returning warriors were kissed, hugged, clapped on the back and literally mobbed.

The famous hard-fighting regiment arrived Thursday morning aboard two special trains, having left Halifax on Tuesday morning. The trains were held over at McAdam on the State of Maine border during the first night so as to fit into local reception arrangements.

The regiment arrived in Halifax Monday afternoon on the French luxury liner Ile de France, coming across from England with the second half of the First Canadian Division. The first half arrived aboard the Dutch liner, New Amsterdam.

Joined by Veterans

Major C. H. Broad of Bancroft, who served overseas with the battalion but returned some time ago, met the regiment at Halifax and returned aboard one of the special trains with the troops. RSM Angus B. Duffy, who left the regiment at Ortona, boarded the train at Montreal.

Led by Major Allen Ross, of Montreal, commanding officer, the Red Patch troops detrained into the arms of thousands of next of kin, and friends roaring forth a great welcome.

A heart touching part of the homecoming was the welcome given by hundreds of the original men of the regiment who had been wounded in action and returned home or repatriated and demobilized as the result of long years of service, mostly five years and more. These men had tears in their eyes as the returning troops stepped out behind the bands.

It was to their efforts mostly that the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment had made such a fine name in the tough and hard fighting in Sicily, Italy and Northwest Europe. To them it was evident that the regiment and the flash on the shoulder was pricelessly dear.

By special order of Major Allen Ross, OC, First Battalion, these men marched with their original companies. They were proud men.

Order of Parade

Forming in companies the regiment paraded from the CNR Station led by the battle flag. Following the battle flag was the First Battalion bugle band and the Second Battalion brass band. Then came Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the regiment. They were followed by A Company and in turn by the color party, B Company, Belleville city brass band C Company, D Company, Pipe Band, veterans of the First Battalion of the Regiment, Veterans' organizations, and a detachment of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

The bands were under the joint command of Capt. Ketcheson and Lt. Jobson, and the Veterans' organizations under Major R. J. Graham. The reception was under command of Major W. A. Davern and Lt.-Col. B. C. Donnan, MC, formerly CO of Regiment.

The saluting base was located in front of the court house, and the salute was taken by Brigadier H. D. Graham, DSO, ED, who commanded the First Brigade of the First Canadian Division in Sicily and in Italy up to the battle of Ortona, in December, 1943. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was one of the three battalions in the First Brigade.

Two three-minute addresses were delivered by the Wardens of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, and then the troops were delivered to their own anxiously waiting people and relatives. A buffet meal for 2,500 was arranged in the armories.

Some 400 or 500 returning troops with the regiment belong to other districts. After the parade and reception they were given transportation home, 4 originals left.

Only four men who went overseas with the regiment nearly six years ago returned to Belleville. They were CQMS L. E. Eames, of Picton; CSM A. J. Campbell, of Brighton; Sergt. Wilfred Hunter, of Whitby, and Sergt. Stanley Scruby, of Toronto.

Eames and Scruby hold the record of being longest with the regiment in the fighting front. Both were away a short time when the regiment first went into action, but rejoined in the latter part of the Sicilian campaign. Other than that short period and the Sicilian campaign only lasted 28 days, they served throughout with the regiment.

CQMS Eames served under 20 different company commanders, two having command on three separate occasions, and six different commanding officers of the regiment, one having had command twice.

The company commanders were

Major (now Lt.-Col.) Bert Kennedy, DSO, of Owen Sound, who was wounded twice and later captured and escaped; Capt. Bob Waugh, MC; Capt. Manley Yarewood, now major, of Madoc; Major O'Connor Fenton, of Picton, wounded in action, now a Lt.-Col.; Capt. Grover Dennis, of Toronto, who was killed in front of Ortona; Lt. (now Capt.) Dean Seaton; Capt. G. Dinwoodie, killed in front of Ortona; Capt. Herbert Long, of Port Hope, wounded in action advancing on Ortona; Lt. Jack Woods; Major (now Lt.-Col.) D. C. Cameron, DSO and Bar; Major G. Allen Ross, DSO, presently commanding the regiment; Capt. Bernard Madden, killed in front of Ortona; Capt. T. C. McClung, of Montreal; Lt. Leitch Scott; Capt. C. G. Kinsley, of Timmins; Major Douglas McDonald, killed near Bagnacavello; Major William Mair; Capt. (now Major) Clifford Broad, of Bancroft; Capt. Wayne King and Capt. Donald Kennedy, mentioned in Despatches.

Many Glowing Pages

The officers and men of the regiment wrote many glowing pages in their glorious history during the fighting in Sicily, Italy, and Northwest Europe until the Germans surrendered.

In the two years from the landing on the southern beaches of Sicily to the conclusion of hostilities in Holland in May this year, 3,900 officers and men served in the regiment, 180 officers, 720 NCO's and 3,000 men.

Thirty decorations, DSC's, MC's, DCM's and MM's to say nothing of mention in despatches, were won by the officers and men of the regiment in the two years of hard and tough fighting.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is now home and the men are returning to their peaceful occupations, as good Canadian citizens as they were before Hitler set out to conquer the world.

Regional officers of the National Film Board across Canada are supplying films to community groups showing how disabled veterans are training to take up jobs in civilian life.

For the reconstruction of Jewish synagogues in Germany, Canadian Jewry have contributed 100 scrolls of the law, the most precious ornament of the Jewish Cult.

China has 28 provinces and two special territories: Outer Mongolia and Tibet, with a total population of 457,835,475.

Oswald was in his sentimental and ex-tragic mood. He was writing a letter to his sweetheart.

"Dearest Annabella," he wrote, "I would swim the mighty ocean for one glance from your eyes, I would walk through a wall of flame for one touch of your tiny hands, I would leap the widest river for a word from your lovely lips. Your own Oswald."

WAYMARK-FOWLER

A wedding of interest took place at the home of Rev. C. Ernest Tatham, when he officiated at the ceremony which united in marriage Jean Elizabeth Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Fowler, of Peterborough, to Albert Charles Waymark, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Waymark, of Havelock. The house was decorated with a profusion of fall flowers.

Mrs. Percy Johnson, cousin of the bride, played the wedding music, and Miss Mary Robson, Reg. N., sang "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk rayon, made on princess line, with a finger-tip veil, and carried a bouquet of red roses. She was attended by Miss Phyllis Morgan, in fuchsia silk rayon, with matching feather hat and veil, and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations. Cecil Conley, was best man.

At the reception at Hooper's Palm Rooms, the bride's mother received, wearing a powder blue sheer crepe ensemble, navy hat, and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. D. Burkitt, of Stirling, who also received, wore a sheer black and white crepe ensemble, with matching hat, and a corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to Quebec province and Eastern Ontario, the bride donned a rosewood shade woollen suit, and brown accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Waymark will live in Peterborough.

Out-of-town guests at the Waymark-Fowler wedding included: Mrs. Gertrude Thompson, Miss Doris Glover, Mrs. Donald Duncan and son, Donald, of Toronto; Mrs. David Burkitt, of Stirling; and Miss Helen Marsh, of Ottawa—Peterborough Examiner.

ST. PAUL'S W.M.S.

The members of St. Paul's W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. Carleton Wright, on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

A brief worship service was followed with a period of business procedure over which the president presided.

Mrs. C. Macklin and Mrs. J. B. Thompson were appointed a nominating committee to fill vacancies on the executive. Thankoffering meeting was announced for November, the Rev. Shorten, of Foxboro will be guest speaker.

A paper on "Peace in Our Time" was read by Mrs. Robt. Christie, and was followed with secretary's and the Treasurer's reports. Ten calls were reported from community Friendship.

At this time Mrs. A. Gordanier took charge of the afternoon programme. The call to worship preceded the singing of Psalm 100, and a Thanksgiving prayer. Mrs. Bradburn gave a reading on "Thanksgiving" and said every day should be a Thanksgiving day. Like the wee girl who, when trying to count the stars said, "I never knew there were so many, so we too can say the same thing when we try to count our blessings."

Mrs. Oliver Stapley read the Scripture passage and gave a short reading on "The Golden Rule." Peace would be world wide and permanent if each person followed this rule along with the teachings of the sermon on the Mount and the Ten Commandments.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

BOY SCOUT MEET

The weekly meeting of the Stirling Wolf Cub was held on Wednesday with a full attendance of 25 boys. The meeting opened and Harold Baker led a discussion as regards the Boy Scout Apple Day. Then the boys enjoyed themselves in some games. The meeting was closed by singing God Save the King.

told of the Church in Angola and its founder the Rev. W. T. Currie. The Christians of Angola call themselves simply "Christians," without any denominational distinction and form a self governing, self supporting and independent church. It is a church of two books;—the New Testament and the hymn book—a Bible reading, testifying, singing and withal a victorious church. No wonder it is growing so fast, that the greatest problem of missionaries and African leaders alike, is to teach and train the crowds who seek admittance into its fellowship.

After a closing worship service, the committee in charge served a bounteous lunch. Mrs. A. Armstrong expressed the gratitude of the members to the hostess and all who had taken part in the meeting.

BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE SELECTS NAPANEE

Plans were made Tuesday at a meeting of the executive held at Bridge Street Church, Belleville for the holding of the 22nd annual Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church. Rev. H. B. Neal, president, Renfrew, was in the chair and Rev. J. E. Beckel, Elgin as secretary.

Billeting of 350-400 lay and ministerial delegates for the greater part of a week has proved a difficult task under war conditions, which this year still prevent the Conference meeting at Brockville, which would have been the normal place. Depending on the surrounding villages and countryside to help out, a delegation from Napanee churches: Revs. C. D. McLeellan and Mr. Burton Elliott of Grace Church and Rev. Nobel Hatton, Harry Vanluren and George Switzer of Trinity Church conveyed the invitation which was gladly accepted.

It was decided to open the Conference at 10 a.m. Tuesday, May 28 and to organize immediately to permit an extra day's work at committees in view of this being General Council year. The Communion service and Memorial to deceased ministers will begin at 3 p.m. the opening day. Meetings will continue until Friday night.

The Lay Association of Conference of which Inspector R. F. Downey, B. Paed, of Peterborough, and Mr. H. S. Johnston, of Lindsay, are President and Secretary respectively, reported that the devotional speaker who this year will be from the United States will be Dr. Edwin McNeill Poteat, President of Colgate Divinity School, Rochester, N.Y. He will give an address each morning, address a separate ministerial session and be the speaker at the Laymen's Banquet which is always an outstanding event with an attendance up to 600.

Named Chairman
Rev. J. R. Trumppour, of Cannifton, who is secretary of the Belleville Presbytery will be chairman of the Business Committee of the Conference along with Rev. Alfred Poulter of Madoc who is chairman of the Belleville Presbytery. With them will be associated a layman to be appointed from Napanee.

Presbyteries of the Conference, of which there are seven, are asked to make nominations for the office of President for next year. So far Cobourg has nominated Rev. J. W. Gordon, of Port Hope and Kingston, Rev. J. E. Beckel of Elgin. They will also nominate a minister and layman to the Conference for appointment as Commissioners to the ensuing General Council of 1946 to meet at a place still undecided.

Brush Shower Held At The Home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Morton Tuesday Night

The Wide-a-Wake Sunday School Class held their October meeting on Tuesday evening, in the form of a "Brush" Shower for one of their active members, Lorne Watson, who will soon wed Miss Ana English, of Belleville, a former class member.

The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Morton and there were over forty in attendance, including the groom's family. The early part of the evening was devoted to games and stunts directed by Rev. T. F. Townsend. Lorne and Ann were then given seats of honour and introduced to Mr. and Mrs. Brush and family. Each member was presented by Miss Fay Fleming, while Mrs. Morton recited a rhyme about each. There was Mrs. Brush (a broom); Mr. Brush (a stable broom); Grandma (a dust mop); Melinda (muescos Brush); Toots (a shoe brush); Skinny (scrub brush); Peter (clothes brush); Carmine (paint brush); Cowie (curry brush); Patsy (whisk); and the baby (shaving brush). Each brush was becomingly dressed.

Lorne and Ana spoke briefly and all sang, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Miss Fleming presided over a short program, which included community singing led by Mr. Townsend with Mrs. Townsend at the piano. Reading by Gerald Clancy, "Musings About Marriage"; Ted Pollock read "The Snoring Husband"; and Mabel Sharp read, "No Room for Pa's Things". The president directed the devotional period and business. The meeting opened with hymn 96. As this meeting was a Thanksgiving Service it was taken from the Glad Tidings which was prepared by Miss Frieda Matthews. Mesdames Anderson, Hermiston, Tummon, Fargay and Miss Geny Spry took different parts of the service.

Mrs. Munro read the minutes of Sept. meeting that was held at the home of Mrs. J. M. Black.

Mrs. Hermiston reported for the visiting committee.

Mrs. W. H. V. Walker and Mrs. McIntosh were appointed a nominating committee for 1946.

The president asked members to bring magazines and books to be sent to the sailors. Mrs. Black and Mrs. Ray, prepared the programme, and in their absence, Mrs. L. Rodgers took charge. Hymn 691 was sung, followed by Glad Tidings Prayer by Mrs. Walker. A splendid topic was given by Miss Lillian Matthews.

Hymn 690 was sung and the Mizpah Benediction brought the meeting to a close. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess and the thanks of the society was ably voiced by Miss Geny Spry.

Clothing Appeal Ends Saturday

"What Can You Spare That They Can Wear?" — Bundles Left at Agric. Office

Lack of essential clothing, shoes and blankets is responsible for much of the suffering, sickness and death among the people of Greece. There, according to reports, one in every six persons is afflicted with tuberculosis and unless the desperately needed apparel and bedding is quickly forthcoming, a tremendous rise in this disease can be expected, the medical authorities say.

Canada is the one current source of such supplies, not only for the Greeks but for the peoples of other war-devastated countries. Contributions of such materials from among the discarded things in Canadian homes now are being assembled by the National Clothing Collection, to meet these desperate needs. All Canadians should contribute their used, but still serviceable apparel and blankets if they can do so without need of replacement.

Saturday, October 20th is the last day of this appeal and those of our readers who wish to make a contribution to the sufferers in Europe are asked to leave their bundle at the local Agricultural Office or notify Miss Rosa Spry, or any other member of the local I.O.D.E.

Canada's Annual Statement

It can be reported that the principal topic of conversation both inside the House of Commons and outside wherever members happen to congregate seems to be this country's annual financial statement which Canada's Minister of Finance, Hon. J. L. Isley, has had to prepare in a manner that would attempt to satisfy as many people as possible, though it must be admitted that to please all taxpayers would be an impossibility under present conditions. Nevertheless, it is held in Ottawa that no official document could stress more at this time the fact that changes in the world are bound to affect the general economic conditions not merely of this nation in her dealings with other nations but the particular economic fate of the individuals in this country. In short, everyone in Canada will be affected directly or indirectly by the developments on the international scene in peacetime as in wartime.

Far too many people in Canada, it appears from information in Ottawa, seem to be under the wrong impression what the cessation of actual hostilities has brought in its wake or what is meant by peacetime under present world conditions which are not normal by any stretch even of the imagination.

"I think it is essential at the beginning to realize that war expenditures proper must continue for some time after the actual end of hostilities," said in part the Canadian Minister of Finance, Hon. J. L. Isley, in a speech in Parliament. This is an extremely important statement because it infers clearly that, while the actual fighting has stopped, yet an estimate of the probable income as well as expenditure of Canada for the following year of so-called peacetime will reflect anything but normal conditions.

There are still very large bills to be paid for Canada's armed forces at home or abroad and these must be provided with pay, allowances, shelter, food, clothing and other supplies, especially for the forces of occupation of enemy territories. There are still very large bills to be paid for the process of demobilization of forces in gratuities, re-establishment credits, etc. There are still very large bills to be paid on account of the sudden termination of the war production schedule in reimbursing contractors for costs which they had incurred or for cancelled contracts. There are still very large bills to be financed for more indirect costs of the war, such as, for instance, the costs of subsidies and the expenditures to keep away inflation, with other huge bills being involved in settlement of outstanding accounts between Canada and Allied countries, particularly the United Kingdom and the United States.

Therefore, though this country is gradually returning to what may be termed a peacetime position, yet Canada will not reach a normal peacetime situation for some months, at least, with a very heavy expenditure likely to continue and these affecting the nation's economy as well as that of the individual within it on account of many uncertain amounts involved and unforeseen contingencies anticipated. Indeed, the number and amounts of substantial continuing costs of the war in the figures showing the Federal Government's expenditures until March 31, 1946, as revealed in the official financial statement of the Minister of Finance in Ottawa, are most impressive to any veteran observer of national affairs in Ottawa. Indicative of this fact are the amounts needed for the armed services, such as $1,068,170,527 for the army, $299,528,667 for the navy, $908,487,116 for the air force, and $16,997,878 for sundry services. Likewise, there are other signs of the times in the requirements of $30,000 for Repatriation of Prisoners of War, $16,100,000 for Administration of Wartime Prices and Trade Board, $100,000,000 for Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation, $282,000,000 for the Department of Munitions and Supply, $449,699 for the National War Labour Board and Regional Boards, $345,705 for the Canadian Corps, $5,727,714 for Increased Activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police due to the war and Security Control Service, $796,000 for the Wartime Information Board, $640,092 for Rehabilitation Information Committee, $71,703,051 for the Veterans Affairs Department, and many others.

In conclusion, these facts emphasize that peace prevails but it cannot be reported that, in so far as Canada's annual financial statement is concerned, actual normal conditions of peacetime exist, with the latter not likely to be forthcoming for some months, at least, if not longer, since the general economic condition in the world are directly affecting this nation's economy, this in turn producing effects in the economic affairs of the individuals within Canada.

No Conference Planned

Though plans for a conference of the Senate and House of Commons in Ottawa for the purpose of increasing the usefulness of the Senate have been suggested in Parliament, yet Canada's Acting Prime Minister, Hon. J. L. Isley, has rejected the idea on the ground that the Speakers of the Senate and the House of Commons are in consultation continuously on the operations or functions of the Upper and Lower Chambers so that there appeared to be no need for such a conference. However, it may be reported at this time that, particularly throughout the war period, the Canadian Senate seemed to be doing remarkably little, though the Senate did not do much even before the war. During the war, legislative action involved considerable questions pertaining to the raising of money, and, since the Senate could not originate such legislation, its operations decreased rapidly. Indeed, the lack of work of the Senate has been and is a topic of much conversation backstage in Ottawa, with some changes being inevitable sooner or later in the Upper Chamber's functions.

Veterans Special Committee

With no less than a record number of 84 veterans amongst the Members of Canada's 20th Parliament, there is no doubt that the interests of these former members of the nation's fighting forces will be well protected in the composition of the special committee of Parliament which is being set up to look after all phases of veterans' affairs. In fact, the actual choice of members of this special veteran's committee of Parliament will be a most difficult task due to the unusually large number of men available for the assignment amongst the membership of the House of Commons. In any case, it is recognized in Ottawa that veterans' affairs will be well watched. When the question of the establishment of this special committee was raised in the House of Commons, Veterans Affairs Minister MacKenzie stressed that similar bodies in the last Parliament had carried on without a tinge of partisanship and in close co-operation. In other words, it is true that the special veterans affairs committee of this 20th Parliament is facing a tremendous task, considering the numerous patterns of its operations, orders-in-council, Pensions Act, preference for veterans in the Civil Service, veterans housing problems, allowances for dependents, etc., yet the large number of veterans in Parliament, aside from the type of these highly qualified representatives, is an assurance of excellent accomplishments for the best interests of veterans far beyond any previous deeds in other Parliaments or in other countries.

75 SEARCHERS FAIL TO DISCOVER CHILD

In response to Mayor Frank Long's broadcast Saturday for volunteers to assist in the search for five-year-old Barbara Radford, missing since Oct. 4, seventy-five citizens along with provincial and local police, canal men, mill workers and hydro employees gathered at the cenotaph at Campbellford, early Sunday afternoon all ready to do their part.

The men were divided into groups and assigned to motorboats and smaller craft. The route was mapped out by an experienced riverman, Walter Lowe, a veteran of the First Great War. Shore lines of all islands south etc., yet the large number of veterans in Parliament, aside from the type of these highly qualified representatives, is an assurance of excellent accomplishments for the best interests of veterans far beyond any previous deeds in other Parliaments or in other countries.

A seaplane from Trenton airport also made a complete survey of the Trent River but the crew had nothing to report. The search will continue again today, numbers of duck hunters having offered their services.

Ask Yule Mail Sent Overseas Before November 10th

The deadline for overseas Christmas mail is Nov. 10, the Canadian Post Office Department announced Friday. Parcels mailed by Nov. 15th will get to Britain in time, but the former date applies strictly to all continental points. Mail which has to travel further should leave even earlier.

However, the post office asks you to start mailing your parcels immediately, because, if the overflow at the end is too great, there won't be sufficient cargo space on ships leaving around deadline dates.

To Canadian forces overseas you may send 11 pounds at 12 cents a lb. The price varies with different countries, as for example, the 11 pound parcel costing $3 to Finland.

Gift parcels addressed to civilians in Great Britain are limited under present British import restrictions to five pounds in weight with not more than two pounds for any one article.

Gifts may not be sent more often than once a month, must be unsolicited and clearly marked as "gifts." Dutiable articles are subject to the usual customs charges in Britain.

Mallers are urged to enclose suitable items only which run no risk of breaking and damaging the parcel or the other mail. Matches, safety matches, lighter fluid or any inflammable substances are strictly prohibited.

Fresh fruit, grapes, pears or any perishable items are not appropriate for mailing. Do not include glass jars or bottles as they are likely to break and cause widespread damage and injuries to handlers.

What makes a little farm a BIG FARM?

It has been said that "a rich man is only a poor man with money". You have also heard that "money makes the mare go" and that "nothing succeeds like success".

Old sayings like these tell you to see the manager of the Bank of Montreal if you need money to make your farm a better farm—if you see opportunities for increased income from increased production.

You do not ask a favour when you ask for a loan at the Bank of Montreal. Lending money is our business and our manager will welcome the opportunity of discussing your plans with you. He will be glad to study your prospects with you, plan with you, discuss actual and promised revenue, and work out with you a plan of convenient repayments.

Many big farms—successful farms—in all parts of Canada were little farms once. For their development many of their owners have relied on timely loans from the Bank of Montreal. Your B of M manager invites you to share their experience.

Livestock Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto

(NOTE—This is the fourth in a series of comments by well-known authorities, written expressly for the Weekly Press of Ontario.)

During the past five years the production possibilities of Canada's vast agricultural resources have been amply demonstrated to the whole world. In response to a universal demand for food, farm production in this Dominion has increased to the point where 40% of the gross output must be marketed abroad in order to maintain a stable industry at home. This increased production has added materially to the national income, hence it is desirable that it be maintained. Maintaining it means finding markets for that product which is not required in Canada. There is little need for apprehension regarding our ability to find markets, while Europe lies prostrate and destitute. After that unhappy continent has experienced a few normal crops, Canadian agriculture may again be confronted with the difficult problem of coping with surpluses.

In a well-planned economy attention should be focused on those products which have a special adaption to Canadian conditions. Hogs rank high in the list of products that have a national significance. They form an "integral part of the production program" on 100,000 Ontario farms. Western farmers who still retain unhappy memories of the early 1930's and the uncertainties associated with a one-crop system of farming are not likely to forsake hog production entirely in the days to come.

If there is any merit in the old maxim "one good turn deserves another," Canada's position in the British bacon market should be secure. When the Baltic countries were invaded Canadian farmers met the challenge by producing hogs in sufficient numbers to compensate for a large portion of the deficit so created. For this magnificent performance the people of Britain are eternally grateful. Nevertheless they cannot be expected to continue purchasing large quantities of our bacon unless it is as good as the product available elsewhere. Moreover it must be shipped to that market in regular quantities and not seasonally as in the past.

Canada lost the British market after the last war because her bacon was inferior to that supplied by most competitors. Vast improvement has been made in the last ten years but the average quality is still lower than pre-war Danish. Quality may be improved through the use of better breeding stock, feeding properly balanced rations and marketing hogs at the most desirable weight. A number of Canadian farmers are consistently marketing hogs grading over 70% A's, as a result of strict observance of these principles. Others would do well to copy their methods.

If Canada loses the British market a second time, continuity of supply will be a vital factor. Bacon shipments can be levelled out from month to month by proper organization of cold storage facilities but that will not solve the problem of fluctuations in production from year to year. For example, reduced hog marketings are now in prospect largely because grain can be sold at profitable prices, a situation that is likely to continue until Europe's immediate needs are met. If hog producers reduce their production because of this temporary condition they are simply paying a route over which other countries can enter the British market. Once that market is lost, Canada's only hope of regaining it is by underselling her competitors, a practice which sharply cuts the profit in hog production in this country. Hogs must become a stable crop on those farms equipped to produce them, otherwise producers will find themselves in the same position as before the war. It should always be remembered that our competitors will discipline themselves severely in order to achieve their objectives. Perhaps we should pursue a more steadfast course now, lest indifference or fear of over-production cost us the market.

In looking to the future it appears obvious that hog production must occupy an important position on Canadian farms if farm income is to be maintained at a high level. Governments realize the necessity of increased trade, hence will strive to obtain satisfactory markets through negotiations and trade agreements. These markets can be held only when producers realize their responsibility and act accordingly. Stable production of a high-quality product at a low cost will help to secure Canada's position. Because of persistent efforts to regain markets on the part of our competitors Canadian producers may have to struggle along with a lower margin of profit. Any slackening of effort on our part will prove advantageous to them. Reserves built up now through the purchase of Victory Bonds will make the struggle easier and provide the medium for holding the market; a market that must be held if Canadian farmers are to enjoy a high cash income.

DO NOT CREATE HENHOUSE SLUMS

Overcrowding of poultry is the source of many evils. Chilled, damp and ill at ease, poultry obliged to pass the winter in a congested, poorly ventilated henhouse soon lose their resistance to disease. In their weakened condition, they are increasingly prone to be attacked by parasites.

When weak, they will probably go hungry. In an overcrowded henhouse there is rarely enough space for every bird at the mash hopper where only the hardiest can find room for their beaks. Consequently, feather picking and even cannibalism become more prevalent.

Yet even the worst laying house can be improved by the admission of more sunlight and by better ventilation and insulation. For every 50 hens, there should be at least 10 feet of feed hoppers.

To be comfortable and healthy, each bird requires from 3½ to 4 square feet of floor space, which should be planned for before winter begins. If the present laying house is not large enough to allow this space for each bird, then winter fewer birds. Cull out the weaklings and retain only the healthy layers. The healthy layers make money and they make more when they are housed comfortably.

MORE PESTICIDES FOR CANADIAN FARMS

Canadian farmers may reasonably hope for a steady improvement in the supply of pest control materials, states the Dominion Department of Agriculture. There will be improvement in supplies of those pesticides which come from overseas, such as pyrethrum from East Africa and Brazil, nux vomica (the source of strychnine) from India, and red squill from the Mediterranean area.

Many pesticidal chemicals which have been going into the munitions of war will again be available to civilians. Examples of these are arsenic, boric acid, chlorine, formaldehyde, sodium fluoride and tar acids.

Nicotine sulphate will continue to be scarce. It is made from tobacco waste but the record increase in the consumption of cigarettes and cigars has resulted both in a decline in their quality and in the quantity of available waste tobacco. The demand for nicotine insecticides increased throughout the war. It may be 12 months before Canada approaches a normal position for nicotine sulphate.

MINIMUM PRICE FIXED FOR SEEDS

The Special Products Board has announced that it is authorized to guarantee to producers 5 cents a pound as the minimum value of participation certificates issued on seeds of alfalfa, alsike clover and alsike-white clover mixture, and 3 cents a pound in the case of red clover seeds.

As all profits resulting from the Board's transactions are dependent upon exports in time for 1946 seeding, participation certificates will not be issued after March 31, 1946.

Should net profits made by the Board on the export of any of these seeds exceed the minimum, the certificate value for that kind of seed will be increased accordingly.

On seeds exported from the 1944 crop the Board was able to exceed the guarantee for alfalfa, paying 7.7 cents a pound, and for red clover, paying 4.04 cents a pound participation certificates. The guaranteed minimum was paid on seeds of alsike and alsike-white clover mixture.

The purpose of guaranteeing a minimum value of participation certificates this year, as last, is to encourage the saving of seed from crops of the current year.

CULLING OF YOUNG POULTRY STOCK

When the birds in a poultry flock have been in lay a sufficient length of time, weaknesses in certain individuals will appear and culls will show up. In many cases these birds will die, says B. F. Cheney, Head Poultry men, Dominion Experimental Station, Kentville, N.S. Many of these birds could have been removed from the flock at an earlier date, with considerable saving in feed, labor and housing space.

There are three particular periods when this can be done conveniently. The first culling should be as day-olds when all small, poorly developed chicks should be disposed of without any hesitation. During the brooding period there will always be some stunted chicks which apparently have not the ability to utilize their feed to advantage. These should be removed as they appear.

When the pullets are being put out on range there is an opportunity to handle the pullets individually. Considerable saving will result if all small pullets and those lacking in pigment of the yellow leg varieties, are taken out.

The third and most rigid culling should take place when the birds are being housed for the winter. Many are put into the laying house that should be marketed for meat, thus saving months of useless feeding, as well as affecting a reduction in the future mortality of the flock.

A considerable proportion of adult mortality is not the result of faulty management in the laying house, but rather dates back in most cases to faulty incubation, brooding and rearing, or poor stock. The sooner these faults are recognized by the producer, and rectified, the greater will be the saving.

CHOOSING A CORN HYBRID

The success that a farmer has with hybrid corn depends to a great extent upon the care with which he chooses his hybrid or hybrids for seeding. In the case of corn hybrids the importance of adaptation cannot be emphasized too strongly, says C. G. Mortimore, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

Individual corn hybrids vary greatly in yield, maturity, strength of stalk, leafiness and other characters. Two important considerations should be yield and maturity in the case of both grain and ensilage. Both of these characteristics of any one hybrid vary under different soil and climate conditions.

The tendency has been to grow late-maturing hybrids in order to obtain the slightly higher yields of grain. However, this is a dangerous practice because in unfavourable seasons it will result in the harvesting of immature corn which provokes storage problems and in the lowering of the grade. Growers should choose hybrids which will ripen properly in their district and produce good yields of high quality grain. If planting is delayed beyond the normal planting time, seed of an earlier hybrid should be used rather than taking a chance on a full-season hybrid.

For ensilage purposes it is not necessary for corn to reach full maturity. Nevertheless, ensilage of highest quality is only produced from corn which has developed to the dough stage. Maturity should receive considerable attention along with yield of fodder, leafiness, strength of stalk, etc., when selecting a hybrid for ensilage.

Local adaption is very important in hybrid corn and so no general recommendations can be made. Growers who are not familiar with the different hybrids may obtain information by writing or visiting their nearest Experimental Station or Agricultural Representative.

KNIT 837 PAIRS OF SOCKS

Clicking her needles to the tune of nearly two and a half pairs of socks a week, Mrs. Walter E. Young, Cedar Beach, near Beaverton, has made 837 pairs of socks for men in the services. Mrs. Young began knitting immediately war was declared and has added a good share to the hundreds of pairs sent from the Beaverton district.

Questions and Answers

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. My husband has just returned from overseas and is getting his discharge. Can he get his coupons for sugar for canning? I have some fruit on hand and could use them?

A. If he is discharged before Oct. 31st and applies for a ration book on or before that date, he may secure his coupons for sugar for canning. The coupons allowed give you ten pounds of sugar.

Q. I am going to start a chicken farm, do I need a W.P.T.B. license for this?

A. No, unless you would be purchasing poultry for resale. You would be classified as a primary producer and would not require a license.

Q. I own a house in a small town and am now planning on renting this. Must I have the rental rate fixed by the Prices Board?

A. Definitely. You should contact the rentals officer at the nearest local office of the Board.

Q. I have been building up a herd of cows and am just starting to make butter in some quantity. Are there any Prices Board regulations regarding this?

A. Yes. You must register with the local ration board in your district, as a primary producer. You will be given a registration card RB-164. You are required to report once a month showing the amount of butter used in your household and the amount of butter sold. You detach the butter coupons that have become valid during the month, and return these to the Board for the amount of butter consumed in the household.

Q. I took a pair of my husband's shoes in the other day to have new full soles put on them. The shoemaker said this wasn't allowed by the W.P.T.B. Is this correct?

A. No. Restrictions regarding the use of full leather soles have been lifted by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Shoe repairers are now permitted to use full leather soles.

Q. Are blouses displayed in stores supposed to have a price tag in evidence?

A. A blouse which is on display in a store window need not have a price tag in evidence, but if this garment or a similar one is shown to a customer or on display in the store the garment must be price tagged where it may be easily read by the customer.

Q. Are canned peas under a price ceiling?

A. Yes. Prices for canned peas vary, however, as to grade and from region to region. This has always been the case.

Q. My grocer has been selling cabbages by the head. I thought they should be sold by the pound.

A. A grocer may sell cabbages by the head, however, the maximum price charged must be computed on basis of weight.

What Others Say!

TROUBLE IS RIGHT!

Unemployment was the rock on which the Bennett government foundered, notwithstanding Mr. Bennett's loud talk that he would end unemployment and hack his way into the markets of the world. The present situation is not bright notwithstanding Mr. Howe's statement that there are two jobs open for every applicant. Men must live and if these jobs won't pay a living wage, it doesn't matter how many jobs there are for each applicant. After the experiences of wartime there should be no question of full employment and comfortable incomes. If the Government persists in its present policy, it is storing up trouble for itself.

TOO MUCH VISITING

A doctor in Toronto writes to the press condemning the practice of sending flowers to patients in hospitals saying it takes up valuable time of the nurses in caring for them. The superintendent of an Ottawa hospital, visiting Port Arthur some time ago, said the average stay of patients in hospitals would be reduced one or two days if unnecessary visits from friends were eliminated.

CONSUMER HAS RIGHTS

Demands for increased wages are spreading through Canada like an epidemic as one of the aftermath of the war, and fears are now being expressed that it will be difficult for Prices and Trade Board officials to keep the prices of commodities stabilized within the reach of the masses.

But in all this postwar turmoil the consumer as well as the producer has a right to be considered. General increases in prices have never made anybody better off, but have more often tended to create unemployment and economic depression.

We only have to look back to the days after the last war for our examples.

PROVINCIAL ORGANIZATION TO BE FORMED

At a meeting of representatives of the nineteen County Agricultural Committees organized in old Ontario under the legislation passed at the 1944 session of the Ontario Legislature, held in Toronto yesterday, steps were taken to create a provincial organization of these committees, to be known as the Ontario Association of County Agricultural Committees. Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, threw out the suggestion that such an organization could act as a co-ordinating body, and also as a clearing house for information and ideas concerning projects for the benefit of Ontario agriculture generally. After welcoming this suggestion and deciding to act upon it, the meeting elected the following as the first officers of the new Association:—

Hon. President—Col. the Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy.

President—W. E. Breckon, Halton County.

1st Vice-President—H. S. Arkell, Carleton County.

2nd Vice-President—John Wilcox, Essex County.

Secretary-Treasurer—C. D. Graham, Toronto.

Executive Committee:—Arnold Darroch, Wellington County; Wilfred Spencer, Hastings County and J. W. Pawley, Peel County.

RUN OVER BY WAGON FARMER IS KILLED

Walter C. Carr, 43-year-old farmer of Solmesville, Sophiasburg township, was fatally injured when run over by a wagon. Stepping from the wagon, the horses took fright and he fell, a wheel passing over his head. He died before being carried to the house.

Mr. Carr is survived by his wife, the former Isabel Kennedy.

The Road Ahead

By Powell Smyly

A very good example of the manner in which a group of veterans can combine for the greater good of all concerned is supplied by the Tilbury brothers. There are four of them altogether, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. Tilbury, of Hamilton, Ontario; although one, Ken, being in the regular navy, does not enter the picture. The other three have pooled their gratitudes, credits, war savings, and other resources, and are in business for themselves.

Harry Leads Off

The oldest of the trio, Harry, ex-sub-lieutenant, RCN, was the organizer of this family cooperative scheme. Before the war, Harry spent four years with a large electrical manufacturing company, and would have been welcomed back by that firm. However, he felt that there would be greater opportunities for him and his brothers in striking out on their collective own, so he went to the other two with his proposal. That is, he wrote to them, because at the time the idea first came to him, the others were separated from him by a couple of oceans. Bob, a flight-sergeant with the RCAF, was in England doing radar work. He is an expert in electronics, having assisted in the installation of radar stations all the way from Florida to Goose Bay, Labrador. Flight-Lieutenant Bill Tilbury was flying with Transport Command of the R.A.F. and was based in India.

Open for Business

The brothers immediately agreed that Harry's plan was sound, and gave him written permission to proceed with the necessary arrangements. As a result, the three, now together again, have opened a hardware and radio repair shop in Hamilton. Harry is the expert on general electrical problems, Bob looks after the radio end, and Ken is the store manager.

The boys do not intend to limit themselves to selling shovels and condensers. Harry has a revolutionary conception of what electrical maintenance should mean, which he will put into practice as soon as equipment is available. He thinks that there is a very real need, in the Hamilton industrial set-up for a firm which will contract to service and maintain small machine shops. He believes that the "ounce of prevention adage can have a commercial application."

Service Their Motto

Harry says: "Most small shops, employing up to a couple of hundred men, keep a maintenance man on the payroll. In most cases he is listed as an electrician, but generally he is just barely able to change a light bulb. Ask him about such things as power factor or line load, and he'll think you're giving him double talk. Well, we can provide the answer to that problem. For a set yearly fee, we'll guarantee to keep the shop electrically serviced, so that the manufacturer won't have his schedules disrupted by unnecessary shut-downs. We also will advise him on electrical installations, and you'd be surprised how many small employers need such advice."

Harry went on to explain that some manufacturers, finding that an increase in orders required the addition of another motor, simply hooked one into the circuit. This took care of their immediate power needs, but it also had a detrimental effect not always appreciated by the owner. By overloading the intake lines, he was simultaneously decreasing the overall efficiency of his plant and also laying himself open to being fined by the Hydro, for exceeding the specified current consumption.

"That is where we can help," Harry points out. "We can estimate the electrical load required to run the shop, and also give the man's entire wiring system a thorough examination—and overhauling, if necessary. On top of that, we have a plan which will eliminate the necessary for a plant's shutting down at all when a motor burns out. How? I'm afraid that's our secret."

FINE OF $2,000 FOR RAISING PRICE OF MEALS

"Deliberate flouting of a measure designed to save this country from inflation," commented a Windsor, Ontario, magistrate last week when he imposed a $2,000 fine on the operator of a dining room who had been found guilty of raising the price of meals and refreshments.

According to the Prices Board's weekly summary of prosecutions 78 persons were sentenced for violating price ceiling regulations.

In Toronto, fines up to $800 were imposed on persons who had violated used car price ceilings. Penalties of $1,000 were imposed on offenders of food rationing laws.

Hello, Homemakers! Apples are too often overlooked as salad ingredients.

In addition to the well-known Waldorf salad—diced apples, chopped celery, nuts and mayonnaise, they may be diced and mixed with raw grated carrots and raisins.

You might also try diced apples mixed with diced cantaloupe, sliced peaches and maraschino cherries, served on lettuce with French dressing.

For a party salad plate, cut a slice from the top of a large, rosy apple, core and scoop out the centre. Mix the centre with cream cheese, celery, nuts and enough mayonnaise to moisten. Stuff the apple cavity with this mixture, cut the apple in sections part way down for easier eating, garnish with fluffy mayonnaise and parsley.

CABBAGE AND APPLE SLAW

1 banana, 1-4 cup French dressing, 1-2 cup sliced apples, 2 cups shredded green cabbage, 1-2 cup diced celery.

Slice the banana, drop immediately into the French dressing along with the apple slices—to avoid discoloration. Combine with remaining ingredients; toss with a fork until thoroughly mixed. If desired, serve this with cream mayonnaise.

APPLE DUMPLINGS

2 cups sifted cake flour, 2-3 tsp. salt, 2 tps. baking powder, 1-2 cup shortening, 1-2 cup milk, 8 apples, 2 tps. brown sugar, 1-4 tsp. nutmeg, 1-4 cup peppermint candies, 2 tps. butter.

Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Cut in shortening. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and roll 1-8 inch thick. Cut into 4-inch squares. Peel and core apples and place one on each square. Mix brown sugar, nutmeg, and candies together. Fill centres of apples with sugar mixture and dot with butter. Pull corners of dough squares up over apples and seal. Bake in an electric oven (375 degs.) 30 to 40 mins. or until apples are soft. Serve hot or cold with cream. Yield: 8 dumplings.

FRUIT WHIP

1 cup evaporated milk, 2 tps. lemon juice, 1 cup sweetened apple sauce.

Chill the milk thoroughly and whip until stiff. Add lemon juice and whip until very stiff. Fold in the cold apple sauce (which should be fairly thick). Serve cold. Fruit whip may be turned into freezing tray of electric refrigerator and frozen.

APPLE AND SALMON SALAD

2 tart apples, diced; 2 cups cooked, flaked salmon; 1 cup diced celery, 1-2 cup salad dressing. Mix the ingredients lightly together. Pile in nests of crisp lettuce.

Note: Cold ham, veal or chicken may be substituted for the salmon.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. R. C. asks: Recipe for Green Tomato Pickles and Chutney Sauce.

Answer: Green Tomato Pickles—4 quarts green tomatoes, 4 small onions, 4 green peppers. Slice the tomatoes, onions and peppers, and sprinkle with 1-2 cup of salt and leave overnight in a crock. The next morning drain off the brine. Put in a preserving kettle 1 quart of vinegar, 1 level teaspoon each of black pepper, mustard seed, celery seed, cloves, allspice and cinnamon and 3-4 cup of sugar. Bring to a boil and add the prepared tomatoes, onions and peppers. Cook slowly for 30 mins. Fill jars and seal.

Chutney Sauce—12 large ripe tomatoes, 4 large onions, 1 green pepper, 1 sweet red pepper, 4 large apples, 1 cup chopped celery, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup vinegar, 2 tps. cinnamon, 1 tsp. cloves, 2 tps. salt, 1 tsp. pepper, 2 tps. mustard. Blanch, peel and cut up tomatoes. Peel and chop onions, dice apples, peppers and celery. Combine all ingredients. Let come to a boil and then cook slowly until thick, taking care not to let it stick to the bottom of the pot and burn. Seal in sterilized jars.

Mrs. J. T. asks: Recipe for Macaroni Mousse.

Answer: Macaroni Mousse—1 cup macaroni in 1-inch lengths, 1-2 cups scalded milk, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 3 tps. butter (melted), 1 green pepper (minced), 1 pimento (minced), 1 tsp. chopped parsley, 2 tps. chopped onion, 1 tsp. salt, 1-2 tsp. paprika, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 3 eggs, well beaten.

Boil the macaroni in salted water until tender; drain and put into a buttered baking dish. While the macaroni is cooking prepare the sauce as follows: Pour the scalded milk over the bread crumbs, and add the butter, seasonings and the grated cheese. Stir in the well-beaten eggs and pour over the macaroni. Set the baking dish in a pan of boiling water and bake 40 mins. in an electric oven 325 degs. To serve turn out on a platter and garnish with parsley.

The Girl of The Double R

By Betty Blockinger

CHAPTER I

The little depot was a yellow patch in a round tan prairie rug. Ralph Rowland looked to the jagged peak of Old Nopoco and found it shrouded in mist, then looked down at the girl beside him.

Cute trick, this kid sister of his. Took town clothes like the blue outfit she was wearing to make him remember she wasn't a younger brother. Seeing her now, a man wouldn't think she could manage a ranch.

"Look, Rusty," he grumbled, "you go along back. There's a storm gathering, and that's no horse you've got tethered there."

Rosalynn (Rusty) Rowland looked at her battered car, then up at her brother. "Won't shy at lightning," she told him.

"Nope," agreed Ralph. "Neither will it pick its way across a dip if you get yourself caught in a freshet."

Rusty shook her head. Here Ralph was heading for a battle with the Nips or the Nazis, and worrying himself over her heading back to the ranch.

"And keep away from Decker," he ordered. "He may be a Gene Autry in looks, but I wouldn't trust him—Deckerment"—he added with scorn—"him with a bullet wound in his leg. Say, if I'd been on the working end of the rifle, he'd 've been wounded where he's weak, in the head."

Rusty bridled a little. Decker wasn't so bad. He couldn't help being handsome.

"And keep an eye on Mammy," continued Ralph. "Don't let him go breaking broncos before the boys have had a hand at them. And—oh—oh, here she comes."

He would say that, thought Rusty. Perhaps all of the travellers in the world would say, "Here she comes," when a train was first sighted.

"Meant what I said about Decker," Ralph reminded her. "He is land hungry. Marrying you, with me out stopping bullets, would be doubling his holdings."

"Intimating no man would have me for myself?" she flashed.

He folded her into his long arms that expressed what he couldn't say, and then the train slid in.

The train diminished in size until it was a black oblong on the darkening tan of the prairie. She was alone; never had she felt so alone.

"But this is idiotic," she reasoned. "Alone, with a ranch full of cowhands, with an Uncle Jed, a mother, and a kid brother equal to a dozen?"

She dabbed at her eyes and turned. There was no use kidding herself. She was alone until Ralph returned—if he did. Her father was dead. Jed, her father's brother, believed in the old law of the West—a bullet, preferably from the hip. Her mother was of little value in executive matters. And Manuel, who took his leads from radio dramas, was a never-ending source of dismay.

"And in the meantime," Rusty said, "There's a storm on in the Nopocos."

The car was old, but trustworthy. Rusty, hands on the wheel, let it have its way. More time for thought. She'd ride the line on the morrow, take the south line first, the next day the west. It would take her a week to ride the lines of the Rowland Ranch, the Double R.

The Rowland ranch lay on the prairie at the foot of the Nopoco range, its southern flank lifting and spreading into the mysteries of the sharp rise where they summered stock not sent on to feeders for fattening.

Rusty's thoughts were interrupted as a cloud of dust appeared in her rear-view mirror.

"No one but Ladue Decker rides like that," she thought as the cloud grew larger.

"Whew," she murmured as a speeding car approached and whizzed past her. "It wasn't Ladue. He'd have recognized Old Faithful. Must be someone trying to beat the freshets."

The car proceeded until Rusty saw a sign ahead. "Dip, three hundred feet," read the sign.

She crossed that and continued on for a stretch of five miles to where a second sign warned of another "dip."

Here a wider channel was running with muddy water, a thin sheet of it. Anxiously she looked south to the mountain range. As yet the sky above was clear. Only the faintest haze seemed filming the blueness of its arc.

"Oh, well," she thought, and considered the cartons filling the tonneau and luggage carrier. Such a storm as this would not keep the dips impassable for more than twelve hours. She could live for a week from the canned goods she was carrying.

Ahead of her, the road swerved sharply. She rounded the curve to find her passage blocked by a car. Scanning the broad expanse of sand, was a slender figure in high boots, breeches and a stockman's hat.

"Hello," she called.

He came toward her swiftly, and she had an impression of impatience, of nervous energy under leash. His hat was swept from his head as he approached, and she wanted to laugh. The man and that lock of red hair loping over his brow were at such variance.

"Am I on the right road, if this is a road, to the Four D. Ranch?" he asked.

"This is a road," laughed Rusty. "and the right one for Decker's."

A few miles later the haze thickened and the Nopocos were hidden from view by storm clouds.

"Here's where I change into something seaworthy."

She climbed into the tonneau of the car. There she changed her clothes, donning boots, breeches, flannel shirt, a high-crowned hat.

Swiftly now she sent the old car hurtling along. If she could cross the Big Sandy, she could make a run for home.

There was no sign of the other car on the long flat stretch ahead. The land broke away abruptly, going down in terraces, grooved by other rains, until it came to the big dip. The Big Sandy was filling rapidly, its three-quarter of a mile stretch a seething mass of muddy water and debris.

But where was the stranger? He couldn't have crossed.

She'd go back to the top rise and look downstream. That mound of earth the road crews had thrown up blocked her vision.

The old car groaned its protest as she started to back. Then, Rusty heard a voice.

"Hello up there. Give me a hand, will you?"

Having braked Old Faithful, Rusty was out of the car and speeding downhill. She rounded the mound and came upon a sight that brought a burst of laughter from her lips.

"Well!" demanded the weird figure below.

Gone was the meticulous appearance of the stranger. Thick deep in muddy water, the only mark of identification Rusty had was the lock of hair now hanging limp across his muddy brow.

A second glance, this time at the car, told what had happened. Its driver had driven into the Big Sandy at full speed, and there the car had skidded, sithering around the mound to come to a lopsided rest.

"If you've a rope—" began the stranger, and as Rusty nodded, "Well, hop to it. A break for me you came along instead of that fresh schoolgirl I met near the highway turn-off."

Rusty's mouth opened, then closed, and swiftly she spun about to race up the mound and teeter down the other side. She could let the creature stay in Big Sandy.

Rope, crowbar and a length of chain, culled from the ever-ready emergency box of the car chest, and Rusty made her laborious way back to the stranger.

"Tie the rope around the off wheel hub," she ordered, "hook the chain to your rear bumper, then put this crowbar under the river side of the front axle and heave when I hunk."

Rusty handed the stranger a tin cup of coffee bound by a strip of flannel to protect his fingers.

One deep draught and he smiled at her. "If you've never been wet and chilled, you know how good these clothes feel and this coffee tastes. Do you always travel prepared for hard-headed wayfarers?"

"We're not that altruistic," she replied, "but we do travel prepared to take care of ourselves. Oh-oh, here she comes. You grasp the beans and I'll take the coffee....Get into my car."

A vivid shaft of lightning struck so close to the car the vehicle shuddered from the vibration of thunder that clapped instantaneously.

"Didn't have your number on it," remarked the stranger. "By the way, my name is Herb."

"Mine's Rosalynn," she obliged, "but they call me Rusty for obvious reasons."

For a little while the storm made conversation impossible. Rusty, through the gloom, watched the Big Sandy spread in white-frothed waves which lapped ever higher.

Calmly she watched and considered. They'd have to spend the night here, of course. There was an old horse blanket in the tool box. She could use that. The poncho would keep "Herb" comparatively comfortable.

She thought nothing of spending the dark hours with a stranger. She thought nothing of it until Herb spoke. "You'd have given shelter to any stranger you met out here?"

The suddenly round eyes which met his answered him. "What else could one do?"

"But suppose I—suppose he—well, suppose the person wasn't altogether—"

"We don't have that kind out here," she interposed confidently.

The stranger's feet swung to the doubtful firmness of the tonneau bed filled with potatoes.

"My dear young lady, the chivalrous West is gone—hasn't anyone told you that? Have you no idea of the infiltration of thugs and gangsters and—"

"I suppose some have slipped in," she agreed. "But goodness, with the nearest town eighty miles away, the nearest city one hundred and fifty—"

"You've driven those miles today, haven't you? Well, then, couldn't they?"

"They'd have to have a better stand-in with the ration board than I have," sighed Rusty. "from now on it's horseflesh and saddle bags."

"They," he snapped, "wouldn't depend upon rationed gasoline. Have you ever heard of black marketing?"

"But why would gangsters waste even black-market gasoline to drive into this country where they have nothing to gain?" she asked reasonably.

He either had no answer to that one or he was weighing it carefully. When she looked back, he seemed to be dozing. Warm, made secure, he was like all men—he dozed off, letting answers to pertinent questions hang in the air.

The storm seemed a thing of the past. The steady thrum of rain on the car roof had softened until only a few drops were striking. And the clouds were breaking to let the low-hung stars of the prairie shine through.

A deep furrow dented Rusty's brow. It would be cold tonight. She should be at the ranch to prod the hands into an extra round of the young and the weaklings. Sudden changes like this could erase the profit from a ranch in one night.

"I'd better take a look at the ignition on my car," came from the tonneau.

Rusty was instantly alert. "I'll hold a flash for you," she said.

They went to the coupe, where Herb worked long and thoughtfully over the engine, Rusty swinging her bull flash to his command.

"Mind stepping in and trying the starter?" he said.

She sat in the deep, soft seat. Her eyes widened as she saw soft, doe-skin gloves, man's size, lying on the seat. Now why, she wondered, plunging the toe of her boot to the starter, would such a he-man as this wear gloves?

The registration card was tied to the wheel rod in such a way she could see no more than the name Herbert. Should she make some excuse and lean forward, slip around to where the dial light would enable her to read everything?

"All right"—he'd closed the hood down—"a little drying, and she'll be as good as new."

He had come to the side of the car as he spoke. Slowly Rusty opened the door, slowly swung her boots out, and then stepped down—stepped into the arms of the stranger.

The white stars seemed frozen to the sky; then they were blotted out. Rusty's heart seemed frozen with fear; then it beat madly.

WOMEN TAKE PLACE OF HORSES

In a desperate effort to get in a bit of crop this past spring old men and women in Europe harnessed themselves to plows and plowed their fields.

Even at night—with their land still deadly with live mines. It was well nigh impossible to get much land seeded.

Added to these hardships was the fact that most of the people were weak from long hunger and couldn't do a day's work—let alone drag a plow.

With all the help they can give themselves, European people looking toward the coming winter, are filled with fear and dismay.

Worst sufferers will be Holland and Poland, but Franco and Greece will also suffer. 50 per cent of Holland's best lands is under sea water. Just 17 days before the German surrender they blew the dykes flooding the polder of Kieringermeer, 48,000 acres of the best land in Holland. In some places the water is 60 feet deep. In this flooding more than 8,000 once happy prosperous people were made homeless and destitute.

In many parts of Europe already starvation and disease are not a threat but a reality. There is no definite assurance that the Allies will be able to handle the huge relief problems.

Since so many of Europe's needs are in short supply here, the issue at stake is whether we are prepared to spare meats and fish, fats and oils and dairy products. Wheat—about one-half of the estimated food needs—can be easily spared.

Winning the war in Europe is not enough. We must win the peace. This will not be an easy job for anyone.

The Washington Department of Agriculture estimates that continental Europe will require 12 million tons of imported food this fall, in order to prevent wide spread famine.

Colonel Llewellyn, British Food Minister—has told the British people that they will have to take in their belts. Their bacon ration has already been cut from 4 to 3 oz. per week, cooking fats to 1 oz. per week, cheese from 3 to 2 oz. with a weekly meat allowance of barely 25c worth, about 12 ounces.

He also says that no less than 100 million liberated people in Europe are in imminent danger of starvation this coming winter unless supplies are sent to them.

It will help Canadians in the weeks to come to remember these British figures, when goods are a bit scarce here.

How to Eat Liver and Like It!

Every hour, every day, all over the world, food is being prepared to fill hungry mouths and satisfy nature's needs. Canadians, in contrast to many suffering hundreds in starving lands, are not faced with disastrous food shortages, but rather are blessed with plentiful stores of vital foods with which to plan nourishing meals.

Many homemakers are learning new tricks with the meats on the market and morsels of good eating are being discovered in the oft-disdained variety or organ meats. With the removal of these meats from the ration list, there will likely be a trend towards kidney steaks and liver dishes—a happy state for the dinner table.

There's good reason why these organ meats should rise to exalted positions in the food kingdom, for besides tasting surprisingly good, they rank high in nutritive virtues. They're rich in high-grade protein, blood-building iron and the B vitamins. Liver and kidney are noteworthy too for their stores of vitamin A. Little wonder that Canada's food rules advocate at least one serving weekly of liver, heart or kidney.

Beef, pork lamb and calf liver are all good meat buys. Pork liver is especially high in food values and is the most economical purchase. Both beef and pork liver are adapted to braising methods of cooking, while lamb and calf liver may be successfully broiled.

Lack of knowledge of cooking techniques resulting in poorly cooked products, has doubtless been the cause of many aversions to variety meats. It's up to the meat cook therefore to exercise her utmost skill to deliver up tantalizing liver entrees such as:

Liver-Vegetable Croquettes

3-4 lb. beef liver, 2 tbsps. butter or mild fat, 1-4 c. minced green pepper, 1-4 c. minced onion, 3 tbsps. flour, 1 cup milk, 3-4 tsp. salt, 1-8 tsp. pepper, 1 tbsps. lemon juice, 1-2 c. diced cooked celery, 1-2 c. diced cooked carrots, 1 egg, well beaten.

Wipe liver with a damp cloth. Remove outside skin and membrane. Cook liver in bacon fat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt butter; add green pepper and onion and cook 5 minutes; add flour and blend; add milk, stirring constantly, and cook until smooth and thick. Add seasonings, diced or ground, cooked liver, lemon juice, celery and carrots. Chill mixture. Shape into croquettes, roll in crumbs, then in beaten egg to which 2 tablespoons of milk have been added, and again in crumbs. Chill well, place in shallow baking pan, brush each with melted butter or bacon fat; bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 45 minutes, until lightly browned. Serve plain or with a sauce. Serves 6.

James W. Haggerty, Treasurer for the County of Hastings, died suddenly as the result of a heart seizure at Dunnville, Ontario Thursday afternoon. He left Belleville on Tuesday to take part in a tour of inspection with the members of the executive committee of the Ontario Good Roads Association of which he was a member and a past president.

Born in Huntingdon Twp.

The late James W. Haggerty was born in Huntingdon Township on November 25th, 1869, and was in his 76th year. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. James Haggerty, his father being at one time a member of the Ontario Legislature for North Hastings. The greater part of his life was passed on the farm where he was born. He took a keen interest in township and county affairs and for six years he served as a member of the Huntingdon Township Council. He filled in an efficient manner this position of Chairman of the Provincial Highway and Purchasing committees. He was also the county representative on the Suburban Areas Commission and was active on most of the important committees in the county council. Mr. Haggerty continued as a member of the council as a member of the of the council until 1926, when he was appointed to the important position of County Treasurer.

St. Paul's United Church Marked 92nd Milestone On Sunday

Rev. A. M. Laverty, Who Recently Returned From Overseas, Occupies Pulpit

Sunday, October 21st, a glorious autumn day, marked the 92nd Anniversary of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, and special services were held both morning and evening, with appropriate music by the choir under the direction of Mr. G. L. Clute, organist. Large congregations were in attendance at both services, with friends of sister churches joining with St. Paul's in the services of Thanksgiving and reconnection.

Rev. A. M. Laverty, who was occupying his own pulpit for the first time since joining the armed services as chaplain some three years ago, delivered two very inspiring sermons, and held the rapt attention of his audience.

Special Music
Special music arranged by Mr. G. L. Clute, as choir leader and organist, was rendered by a full choir at both services. In the morning the choir rendered the anthem, "Christ, the Morn Breaks Sweetly O'er Thee," with Mrs. Harold West and Mr. Ted Reynolds taking the solo parts, and Mr. Reynolds sang, "Thy Will Be Done."

At the evening service the choir rendered "Light At Eventide," with the solo parts taken by Mrs. Cecil Macklin and Mr. Ted Reynolds, and "O Worship The King," and Mrs. Harold West sang, "Hold Thou My Hand."

Morning Service
In speaking to the congregation, Rev. Mr. Laverty mentioned the fact that he had looked forward to this day for a long time. The faithfulness of his people had been more than could be anticipated. He urged those present not to forget what a great bunch of boys that Canada had sent away, and what a great bunch she is receiving back. Those of us who were together in the services held the same service sometimes under different conditions, but they were made. My fervent wish and prayer is that we do not forget them in the days to come.

For his morning sermon, he chose as his subject, "The Church Member's Job." "What I am saying to you is a result of serious thinking and prayer over what has happened to so many of us in the past few years. The Church has a job. If I did not think so, I would not have volunteered to do what I have done. I never believed in War, but the importance of the things for which the Christian Church stands.

"When we come to worship God, we are coming, not that God will remember us, but that we will remember him. He never forgets us. We forget Him in our dealings, and God help us if we do. We come in Thanksgiving and joy for all his goodness to us, as anybody who looks back over the past six years certainly will know that He has. In 1940 Hitler could have walked into England—He did not. In 1941 he made the error of entering Russia. Why? It seemed the right thing to do. He could have cut through Egypt, but did not. When he could have rushed and got through to the Suez, he did not. When they took the men off Dunkirk, they had a calm sea and mist for hours and hours. Sinful as we are, we are still the instruments and children of God. His hand is with us in the beginning and at the end of the day.

We have God to reach a fellowship together. There are times when the individual is no use, except the hand of a friend. Friendship more than all else, and that spiritual friendship which was sustained by letters and prayers have helped loved ones over the dangerous years. In the fellowship of God's Church, we are all on an equal foundation. There is no distinction of race. We all come because we know the forgiving love of God.

We should all be more considerate of the value of other people. If we cannot overflow with love and helpfulness for those who are heavily burdened, then we are not a Christian Community, nor members in the name of Jesus Christ. Our judgment of others should not be hasty. God help

Cars Collide

Two cars, driven by Wm. Linn, of Marmora, and Hugh McCormick, of Trenton, collided about 2 miles north of this village on Highway No. 14 on Sunday evening. Both vehicles were damaged but none of the occupants was injured.

RED CROSS NOTES

An urgent request has been received by the Stirling Branch of the Red Cross. There is a great need for sheets, pillow cases and towels.

Your attendance on Friday afternoons will show your interest or indifference.

Congregations Welcome Minister

On Wednesday evening, Oct. 24th, the congregations of St. Paul's United Church and Carmel United Church tendered a "Welcome Home" social evening to their minister, Rev. A. M. Laverty, and Mrs. Laverty. Over one hundred and fifty were in attendance with Mr. Harry Brown, of Carmel, acting as chairman for the evening. The Recording Steward, Mr. Harry Hulm, presented a splendid address on behalf of the two congregations. Rev. Laverty, in his very interesting manner, made a suitable reply and told of some of his duties as padre overseas.

The musical part of the programme consisted of a duet by Mrs. Harold West and Mrs. Millar; solo by Mr. Ted Reynolds; duet by Mr. Douglas Pyear and Mr. Harry Brown, and lively community singing led by Mr. H. Brown with Mr. G. L. Clute at the piano.

At the conclusion of the program members of the Carmel Women's Association and St. Paul's Women's Association served a very dainty lunch and a real social half hour was enjoyed by all present.

us, we all stand in need of the mercy and understanding of Jesus Christ, why should we set ourselves up to criticize other people? We should cultivate the spirit of understanding and forbearance. We think we are too good.

Why do not people come to Church? There must be a reason? From the day we reached Normandy we had 70% and more at church. They came willingly. We must find out why the people do not come to the House of God. There has got to be a fellowship. We, as a Church, have got to stand with each individual — little people count a great deal. We cannot get along without them. They count for us because they count for Jesus Christ. We cannot stand by anywhere and see the individual exploited or oppressed without any regard for their welfare. We have got to serve the community in which we live. As members of the Christian community, we have got to stand in the sight of God and walk according to His will. We must insist upon the principles of Jesus Christ. There are instances every single day where a man can stand FOR or AGAINST—whether he is a good soldier of Jesus Christ or whether he is a deserter. Finally, in ourselves, we can give Jesus Christ to the world. We have got to get away from impersonal Christianity—get away from talking about Jesus Christ and a loving Father—we have got to witness Him in ourselves, by our speech and conduct.

Evening Service
Rev. Mr. Laverty took for his sermon in the evening the subject, "Prayer," about which a lot of people have a very vague idea, because they do not make use of it. "As a minister of the Christian Church, it was my duty and joy to tell the boys my ideas while in the service. Often I spoke for about 15 minutes, then they would ask questions and we would have discussion on whatever topic I used. Once it was 'Prayer,' and several asked 'Why bother, if God

Bride-To-Be Showered

On Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gorman a surprise party and shower was held in honour of Miss Lillian Wood, a bride of early November.

On arrival of the bride-to-be she was given a seat of honour and a prettily decorated wagon, drawn by Master Tommy Gorman in fancy costume and loaded with many beautiful gifts, was placed before her. After the opening of the gifts, the evening was spent in cards and singing. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess of the evening, at which time Lillian thanked all her friends for their gifts and the lovely evening.

On Wednesday evening, October 17, some twenty friends of Miss Wood gathered at the home of Mrs. Ernest Gair and presented her with a miscellaneous shower. Mrs. Ed. Gorman read the accompanying address and the evening was spent in cards and social intercourse. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Rifleman David Wellman, Prisoner of War, Honoured At Springbrook

Presented With Self-Winding Wrist Watch And Purse of Money — Large Crowd

On Friday evening of last week about four hundred friends and neighbours of Rifleman Dave Wellman, returned Prisoner of War (Japan), gathered at the Orange Hall, Springbrook, and presented him with a self-winding wrist-watch and a purse of money.

Allan B. McComb acted as chairman, and filled that office in a very capable manner. He called to the platform all service men and women present. About a score of men accepted the invitation and LAW Beatrice Caldwell, of the R. C. A. F., of Trenton, was also present. All spoke a few words of welcome and appreciation, expressing their pleasure at seeing Dave back home after being for four years a prisoner in the hands of the Japanese. Dave's three brothers, Charlie, Clarence and Ralph, came to the platform and stood beside him as they told the audience of their delight at having their brother home once again. Their mother, Mrs. Jennie Wellman, also spoke and said how happy she was to have her son safe at home, and thanked her many kind friends and neighbours for their thoughtfulness and kindness during his absence. Others asked to speak were Rev. J. M. Brownlie, Deputy Reeve John Morrison, and J. F. Baker. Mr. Brownlie likened Dave's return from a Jap prison camp to the return of "The Prodigal Son" of the scriptures, inasmuch as we can say that it is almost like one returning from the dead.

Councilman Morrison expressed his pleasure at being able to welcome Dave back home, and wished him health and prosperity, and hoped he would live many years to come in this township. Mr. Baker, Canadian Pacific Railway station agent, mentioned that the largest crowd he had ever seen at the depot at Bonarlaw was on the day that Dave arrived on the noon train and hundreds had gathered there to welcome him home.

The presentation address was read by Flying Officer Russell Rowe, after which Dave replied in a short speech, expressing his thanks for the beautiful gift, and also thanked friends and neighbour who were so kind to his mother after he was reported missing. All sang, "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow," and gave him three hearty cheers.

After the presentation and speeches, all joined in round and square dancing to the music of Doug. Jones' orchestra, Carl McMillan acting as floor manager. Another interesting feature of the evening was an acrobatic act staged by the young daughters of Clifford Melroy, of Peterborough, formerly a Bonarlaw boy. The girls delighted the audience, performing many difficult acts performed only by professionals.

A bountiful lunch was served at midnight. Dave mingled with the

No Final Plans

It must be emphasized in the strongest possible terms that the official statement about the estimated size of Canada's army, navy and air force for the ensuring two-year "interim" period before the conclusive peacetime establishments are settled in not necessarily the absolute "final" peacetime scope of this nation's defence forces since the present unsettled state of world affairs may bring possible changes in any such future plans. This is stressed here on account of many false impressions which seem to prevail in Canada concerning these reports from Ottawa, where it has been suggested that Canada's so-called post-war air force will be composed of between 15,000 to 20,000 men in 10 squadrons, her army of about 20,000 men in addition to a large reserve force, and a navy of about 10,000 men in possibly 20 ships. Prior to the last war, Canada's air force had less than 4,000 men with an auxiliary of 1,000 and no reserve; her navy had less than 2,000 in five ships, and her army was very small. But the main point to bear in mind is that the plans already reported and which anxiously have been awaited are only tentative post-war estimates so that world affairs alone will be the actual determining factors of the eventual peacetime set-up of this nation's armed forces in the future.

Back Door Of Canada

It is not often that an observer can see in this session of Parliament members of the Liberal, Progressive-Conservative, C. C. F., Social Credit parties and other groups vote together in favour of a resolution proposed by a private member. However, this is something which happened in the House of Commons when the proposal was made that the Government should make the fullest possible use of the harbour and port facilities at Churchill at the end of the Hudson Bay Railway or management of the control of the port to a joint board appointed by the governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Members of various political parties or groups combined to support this proposal, and in the minority vote against it, though it was supported by many Liberals and Cabinet Ministers as well as others, were National Revenue Minister McCann, Parliamentary Assistant to the Finance Minister, R. W. Mayhew, Parliamentary Assistant to the Defence Minister, W. C. MacDonald and other Liberals. Transport Minister Chevrier and Reconstruction Minister Howe, who had constructed the grain elevator at Churchill in 1935 before entering politics as a private engineer, indicated how the Federal Government had done its best to promote the greater use of Churchill and the Hudson Bay Railway, with the information being disclosed that early in the last war sailings from this route were discontinued after a torpedo had sunk a ship and insufficient naval protection was available to use it frequently. Then again, it was revealed that in 1944 the railway's deficit was no less than $623,847. In general, views were expressed that the necessary steps ought to be taken to bring more goods from abroad through Churchill in order to develop it, and supporters of this plan showed that as early as 1881 there were reports that Churchill can be made an all-year port as well as other reports that a bushel of wheat from Churchill could be shipped for a total cost of 29.25 cents to Liverpool as compared with 35.25 cents via Montreal or Vancouver. Churchill was the "back door to Canada" it was claimed in Parliament, with the majority of the members supporting every possible development of its harbour and port facilities.

Canada Is Honoured

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization's meeting in Quebec has been but one of several recent occasions when signal honours were paid to Canada as a nation amongst the nations of the world. This organization, UNFAO, born at Hot Springs, Va., in 1943, was the first body brought into actual operations by the United Nations since the war, and its meeting in Canada has been commented upon everywhere throughout the world. But there are others. Canada has been requested to attend the first meeting of the Far Eastern Advisory Commission concerning postwar control of Japan; a Canadian has acted as chairman of the second meeting of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. There have been other signs in Ottawa recently of Canada's great growing prestige and position in world affairs, though it must be confessed that these reports have not always been properly understood by the man-in-the-street in Canada.

Continuation of Controls

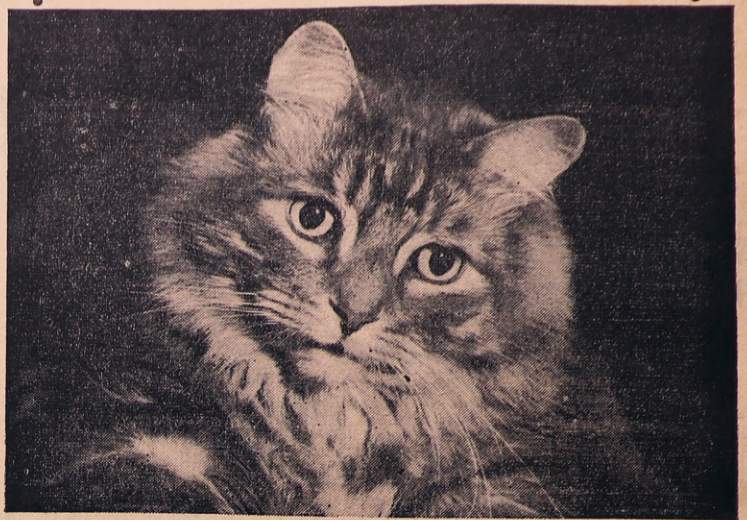

A hint has been given in Ottawa that there will be a continuation of controls for some time anyhow in order to fight inflationary tendencies which may arise after World War II, with this hint being detected in the words of the "National Emergency Powers Act," presented in Parliament by the Government through Justice Minister St. Laurent. This Act is to run for one year only, unless it is extended by Parliament, and it is similar in some ways to the War Measures Act, though, of course, considerably different in its much more limited scope. In any case, it is aimed as a means for fighting any inflationary tendencies in Canada during the present period after the war.

Consultation, But Not Decision

With the opening of offices in this nation's capital by the world famous town planner from Paris, France, Jacques Greber, in order to consider ways and means of rendering the beautification of Ottawa as a fitting national war memorial, the Minister (continued on page seven)

PLANNING for TOMORROW'S FARMING

ONTARIO'S FUTURE IN CHEESE alarm, but rather from the standpoint of exploring possible trends and challenges.

By W. H. Sproule, Professor of Dairying, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ontario.

(NOTE—This in the fifth in a series of comments by well-known authorities, written expressly for the Weekly Press of Ontario)

Last year, Ontario's cheese output was over 178 million pounds, an increase of 49 percent over the five year average prior to the war. During the same period 131 million pounds of cheese were exported to the United Kingdom. It is largely because of its position in the export market that cheese commands so much attention in Canadian Agricultural policy.

In periods of favourable prices for cheese and other farm products, it is well to give careful consideration to the future. It is beyond our reach to accurately anticipate what the post-war period may bring. We know that prices which we now enjoy are induced by war demands. It is therefore quite natural to expect that when the war is over and normal demands are resumed, many of the price advantages which we now enjoy will, of necessity, adjust themselves to lower levels. It was generally recognized while negotiations regarding the cheese contracts were under way between the British Ministry of Food and the representatives of Canada's Government, that while twenty-cent cheese was possible during the war, it could scarcely be considered a post-war price. However, it is not necessary that the future be viewed with

The impact of war is bound to create changed conditions, and these conditions — the aftermath of war — may be expected to be different from those which prevailed in pre-war times or during the period of the war itself. In order that the cheese producer may successfully meet the demands and uncertainties of the post-war period, a policy of conservation of financial resources now, when farm income is at a high level, would seem to provide the best assurance for the future adjustment period. The temptation to spend in keeping with increased earning power in the purchase of non-essentials should be avoided as much as possible. Funds thus preserved will be available later for both farm and cheese factory equipment which is likely to undergo considerable improvement in design, wearing quality and cost. Reserves of savings accumulated through the purchase of Victory Bonds and bank savings will enable dairymen not only to withstand loss of markets or decline in prices, should such occur, but also to make possible carrying through such post-war plans as may be deemed necessary in the best interests of the industry.

Let us recall that for the past five years of war the cheese industry has enjoyed a noncompetitive market for all surplus cheese supplies. With the termination of war, and the resumption of normal trade international competition in markets is certain, and with it quality will become the deciding factor. To assure the quality of cheese, high quality in milk supplies will be necessary. This involves the possible improvement and modification of many stables in which milk is produced and also, the acquisition of modern milk-cooling facilities on many farms. Undoubtedly the fundamental cause of much of our second-grade and mediocre cheese is traceable to inferior milk supplies. It will be better in the future to provide the facilities and equipment necessary to assure high quality of product even at the expense of quantity. These improvements should not be attempted now because of the shortage of labour and materials. The future need of these improvements is one of the essential reasons for conserving finances at the present time.

Among other considerations to which the cheese and milk producer should give study immediately is the cost of producing milk from his own herd. Not only will the industry be confronted with competition in cheese quality, but price and cost of production also will be a vital factor in his future. One of the most important ways to reduce the cost of milk production will be to improve the average production per cow. There is no doubt that among our cheese-producing herds of Ontario may be found many individual cows and even herds which, at probable post-war prices for milk, would pay their maintenance, not to mention profits to their owner. To establish these herds upon a paying basis at lower price levels for cheese will require drastic culling of low-producing cows. This will entail a policy of herd improvement which will involve the keeping of milk and fat production records, followed by judicious selection of good cows for replacements. The acquisition of bulls of proven ancestry and the possible introduction of additional females into the herd where necessary will of course, require the investment of capital which should be provided for post-war plans.

From the standpoint of cheese manufacturing costs, there is little doubt of the existence of too many small, poorly-equipped factories in Ontario—factories in which the present cheese tonnage output is too small to permit employing sufficient trained personnel to manufacture cheese economically. Many of these factories have been operating year after year with old equipment which has reached a poor state of repair, and is not conducive to high quality cheese. Future demands will undoubtedly make necessary a recognition on the part of cheese producers and factory owners of the need for improved manufacturing facilities. In many instances the amalgamation of two or more existing factories may offer a solution. In such cases, a new building fully equipped with modern vats, cheese presses and curing rooms should be provided, for which the cost can be partly subsidized by the government. The remaining fifty per cent of the cost might be provided from a reserve established for this purpose (facilitated by authorizing that deductions be made from milk payments now when prices are most favorable. The aggregate of funds thus collected might be invested in Victory Bonds in which

A Message TO FARMERS from a Farmer

H. H. Hannam is President and Managing Director of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. In a message addressed to farmers, Mr. Hannam says:

"The farmer who is wise will look ahead and plan carefully.

"And in these years when prices and returns are more satisfactory than they have been, when labor is scarce, when farm machinery is restricted, when building materials are not readily available, a good course to follow would be that of putting a substantial share of the year's earnings into sound securities such as Victory Bonds. These reserves will not only provide a measure of insurance against difficulties in less favorable years, but at such time when supplies are favorable and costs will probably be lower, their purchasing power will be greater and return from them correspondingly increased.

"We believe this is good planning from the farmer's standpoint. At the same time, it is the very best of planning from the standpoint of the Nation."

or No. You are wrong if you say you do not get an answer.

Jesus Christ got down on His knees and sweated and prayed, 'Let this cup pass,' and He was asking God for something. God answered His prayer—God said no.

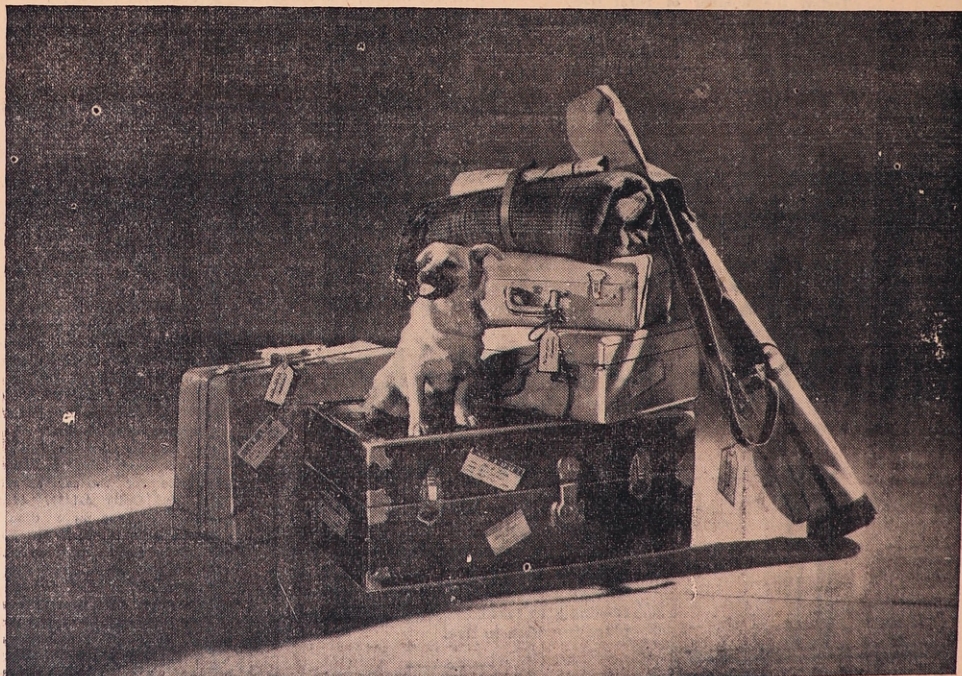

"If you do not get the answer you want, that is too bad. But life proved to you time and time again that no is the right answer. We are simply unable to see the end of our life and know what the right answer should be.

"Others question, 'Is prayer just a talk with ourselves?' When Jesus retired with himself by the Lake of Galilee and came back down, His friends then knew He had not been just talking with himself. There was a radiance on his face. We are given the power of a free world and life proves over and over again that there are many things that God can do.

What about when you pray on and on and do not seem to be getting an answer? If you want Him, keep the contact open: keep your own life clean. The fault lies so often with ourselves. The person who only spends ten minutes a day thinking of God, and the rest of himself, cannot expect much response to his prayers. Pray whenever you can—there is no fixed place for it. You can pray in a tent, in a cellar or a German house with the top blown off, or in a jeep—there are some places where you have got to pray or cave inside out."

The closing hymn was "Abide With Me, Fast Falls the Eventide."

"... and someday, WE'LL take a trip!"

SOMEWHERE in the back of your mind, there's that urge to go places. Right now it must be filed under "Future" but it's part of us as Canadians to want to discover for ourselves what the rest of the world is like—to plan for that "some day," when we'll take a trip! That's why it must be part of our planning now, to make sure such pleasant things as trips are possible in the post-war world. And they'll be possible only if we fight against inflation—fight now to keep Canada's dollar worth a full dollar!

Why is NOW so important? Because NOW civilian goods are scarce, money is plentiful. NOW is the time we must guard against paying more than things are worth—against black markets—against buying more than we need, or goods we don't need!

NOW is the time we must support rationing and price controls!

Up to the present, we've kept our dollar sound. And we can continue to do so if we keep up a strong, steady fight against inflation!

If we fail in this fight, prices will rise. Wages will never quite catch up. Soon you'll pay, perhaps a dollar for a quarter's worth of goods! And that means your dollar is worth only a quarter! That's inflation.

And after inflation, comes depression. Depression means neither you nor anyone else in Canada will have trips. You'll be lucky if you have a job! So, for our own sakes, for the sake of returned men, for our children, let's never relax our struggle to keep Canada's dollar worth a full dollar!

Make this Pledge Today!

I pledge myself to do my part in fighting inflation:

By observing rationing and avoiding black markets in any shape or form.

By respecting price controls and other anti-inflation measures, and refraining from careless and unnecessary buying. I will not buy two where one will do, nor will I buy a "new" where an "old" will do.

By buying Victory Bonds and War Savings Stamps, supporting taxation and abiding by all such measures which will lower the cost of living and help keep prices at a normal level.

Hog Marketing Plan Endorsed

Ontario Hog Producers' Association delegates, meeting in Toronto, endorsed a proposed hog marketing plan which, according to Col. T. L. Kennedy, provincial agricultural minister, will bring an annual increase in income of $3,000,000 to hog producers.

Voting on the plan by the producers will be on Dec. 8. Marketing will be divided into seven districts.

The conference also passed a resolution commending the government action to control certain packing plants. It also asked the Dominion meat board to provide producers with information concerning a "fair and equitable basic minimum price."

Questions and Answers

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other War-time Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to the Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville.

Q: Are clubs and organizations planning welcome home celebrations for returning servicemen allowed to apply to the ration administration for additional rations?

A: The W. P. & T. B. is very much in sympathy with welcome home receptions, but it cannot afford to allot extra rations for this purpose. Organizers of such receptions must therefore use individual members' ration allowances if they serve refreshments involving rationed foods.

Q: The last time meat was rationed coupons became invalid at regular intervals. Will they become invalid the same way under the present ration plan?

A: No. Coupons have no expiry date. Announcement will be made when coupons become invalid.

Q: I bought a used car recently. Since then I find the dealer charged me more for the car than the amount which was stated on the form sent me by the Prices Board. Is he allowed to charge me more than the price stated on this form?

A: He is not allowed to charge more than the maximum ceiling price for the car as set forth in Board Order A-1489. If the dealer charged you more than the price stated on the form, we would advise you to get in touch with the nearest office of the Prices Board immediately.

Q: Is it permissible to serve liver or other types of unrationed meats in restaurants on Meatless Days?

A: No. Public eating places are not permitted to serve any kind of meat on a Meatless Day.

Q: Recently I ordered a pound of lard from my grocer who refused to sell me the pound unless I agreed to purchase a dollar's worth of other groceries in his store. Is he allowed to do this?

A: Your grocer would be within his rights if he were to refuse outright to sell you a pound of lard. Offering to sell one article with several others is a conditional sale which is prohibited by the Prices Board. You should advise him to this effect.

Q: My butcher last week charged me 55 cents per pound for round steak minced. This price appears to be much too high to me. Have I been overcharged?

A: Definitely. It would seem that you have been overcharged by approximately 12 cents per pound. You can avoid being overcharged by checking the price for a beef cut on the beef price chart which your butcher must display.

Q: If I do not buy my meat from a butcher, but purchase it from a neighbouring farmer, do I have to surrender coupons for it?

A: Yes. You must give ration coupons to the farmer from whom you purchase the meat. You will have to surrender one coupon for Hello, Homemakers! Once again it is time to replace screens and awnings with storm windows and to clean and arrange our homes for winter living. Housecleaning may cause a burst of energy on the part of the homemaker, but it will be greeted by the other members of the family if everything is turned inside out at once.

It is wise to clean only one room at a time. Begin with the walls, then do the floor and windows, and finally, the furnishings. To remove wax from polished floors use vinegar in warm water or a standard cleaning fluid. To clean rugs and upholstery use a vacuum cleaner and the suitable attachments.

When cleaning bookcases and magazine racks, do not forget to sort out the more recent contents for the Navy League. Do not overlook the pictures, lighting fixtures and knick-knacks. Now you are ready to rearrange the furniture and hang the fresh curtains.

Q: What meats are not rationed in Canada?

A: Blood sausage, liver, kidney, heart, tongue in fresh, cured, smoked or cooked forms are temporarily off the ration list. However, these meats are rationed if combined with other rationed meats or packed in sealed containers.

Q: I am a monthly tenant and I have been given notice to vacate by the end of the year. This notice was served last spring. I have now found other accommodation and I would like to know whether I can move before the end of this year.

A: You may give your landlord the notice required under the laws of the province. In most provinces the laws require a full rental month's notice to be given before the first of a rental month.

boiling salted water, and cook until tender. Drain. Pour into buttered pudding dish. Add the well-beaten eggs to the milk and vanilla. Pour over the macaroni. Dust with nutmeg or cinnamon. Dot with the butter. Set in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until custard is set and top a golden brown. Serve with top of milk or cream.

Old-Time Apple Pudding
Pare four large, sour apples, core and chop fine with chopping knife in heaping bowl. Mix 4 ounces (about a cup) of stale bread crumbs with 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon and a half of one grated nutmeg, and mix with the apples. Beat the yolks of 4 eggs, and add to the mixture. Stir in the whites carefully, until the whole is moist enough to hold together, then steam for 2 hours in a well-greased mould. Serve hot with a foamy sauce, which should supply enough sweetening unless apples are excessively sour.

The TELEPHONE HAS SERVED THE FARMER WELL

For more than half a century, the telephone has served the farmer well... in business... in emergencies... in more pleasant living.

There was the farmer, for example, who wrote that his telephone enabled him to get better prices for his crops.

"It gets me to market in a few seconds," he said, "and at the best time."

Today, the number of rural telephones is at an all-time high. When materials and man-power are again available, it will be much higher. Telephone service for farms will be even better than ever before.

The Girl of The Double R

By Betty Blockinger

CHAPTER II.

Ralph Rowland was off to the war. His sister, Rusty, drove him to the station. She hated to see him go, leaving only an uncle, young brother and her mother on the ranch. She knew she would have to run the ranch and would receive little help from any of them. On the way back to the ranch she ran into a storm, found a stranger calling himself "Herb" wrecked. She pulled his car out of the water before deciding to try again to reach the ranch.

He held her away for a moment. "Let this be a lesson to you," he chuckled. "Don't pick up chance strangers on a lonely prairie."

His arms closed again around her, but not for long.

"Let this," said Rusty grimly, "be a lesson to you. . . The arms, stranger Herb, are supposed to reach for the stars. . . There, that's more like it."

How, thought Rusty wildly, could you keep a revolver in a man's midriff when it heaved with such convulsive laughter.

On a morning a few weeks later, Rusty stood on the ranch house veranda and watched the sun's approach over the Popovers.

Uncle Jed ambled out after her. "What's for to-day?" he asked. "That southern slope must be spaded," Rusty began earnestly. "We have got to get our next vegetable crop in without—"

"Of all the dad-gummed foolish nonsense!" burst from the old man, "This thing of turning a respectable cow ranch into a truck garden is the dad-gummed blindest—"

"Hold it," Rusty said, "and remember you're the eatingest man on this spread. If we can't get the gasoline to get into town to buy the vegetables that ain't on the market any longer, just what are you going to use for food?"

"I'll eat Mexican beans afore I'll lower myself to spading for spuds."

As Rusty rode on over the range, she told herself that she should not blame two men for leaving. How could they be expected to withstand the lure of high wages in war plants? And the Double D could not afford to pay such wages.

Nor could she blame Uncle Jed for wanting to sell the young stock for high prices. It was a temptation. But Ralph had said that they must remain true to their country—and they would do much toward relieving the meat shortage if they sent their stocks to the feeders before selling. Those young steers out there would triple in size, would mean three times the meat for consumption, after they'd been built up for the packers.

Yet this meant very little additional profit for the ranch.

"Get thee behind me, uncle Jed," Rusty murmured, digging her heels into the pony's sides.

A tortuous path led the sharp rise of the first Popover. The Pinto, Babe, took it carefully, kicking rolling rocks from under her hoofs. She came out on a shelf.

And then her attention was diverted to the far north, where a smudge of smoke showed the location of the distant city. This turned her thoughts to the red-headed stranger, Herb. Of course, he might have come from another city. . .

Suddenly, Rusty stiffened. There to the north, near the road—those turkey hawks and buzzards wheeling. A cloud of them. . . Too many for a dead prairie dog or rabbit. And the stock was huddled far from the spot. They were milling about in a tightly-packed mass against the line fence.

Babe picked her way down the first rise carefully. Then, finding the prairie soil beneath her, she stretched her legs and flew over the short green, her mistress straining forward as though she might help.

Rusty called out as she neared the milling mass of stock, and they lifted their white faces, only to lower them again and begin their ceaseless milling.

The last gate open, she rode in, circled them and drove them ahead to the gate. They poured through, and once through, went lumbering on south, she noticed.

Babe snorted, danced and turned her head. She backed and protested, she cavorted and objected, and finally, knowing it was useless to change the mind of her mistress, she proceeded with mincing steps.

"Ah—" Rusty breathed the word in shocked surprise.

The herd was due for the feeder's trucks. Some of them would still be run up the tramway. But those over there—

"Why that's queer, why I've never seen anything like this. . . Someone—someone has killed those and taken—"

Someone had come in, slaughtered the cattle, and taken only the prime cuts. The rest lay there spilling in the sun.

Uncle Jed wouldn't believe it. He stomped around and defied Rusty.

"Can't be," he rumbled. "Cattle don't get themselves rifle-killed—Man wouldn't do a thing like that—no man—"

"Uncle," Rusty said, "Haven't you heard of black marketing? It's the same as bootlegging—run by gangsters. Gangsters use high-powered rifles and machine guns, don't they?" "Bah!" snorted the old man. "This is the range, girl. Gangsters don't come outside city limits 'less they're run out. You have been listening to too many of them radio drammers. Going out to take a look-see for myself."

He went to the door to bellow, "Manny!"

"Want me, Unc?" inquired a voice from behind the nearest dyan, and a shock of dark hair followed by two dark eyes appeared over the back. "Say, Sis, honest, were they gangsters like in the movies? Say, can I go with you, Unc?"

"Ask your sister; she's boss around here," grumbled Jed Rowland. "Then get yourself out and whistle up Sudan."

"Let the boy go," Mrs. Rowland, coming in, promptly sank heavily into a chair. "Now, Rosalynn, tell me everything from the beginning. I do wish your father were here," she sighed as her brother-in-law went out. "We need a man to handle this. I think we'd better telephone Decker and see what he says."

Rusty would have preferred to call the sheriff. All the ranches should be warned, and he was the one to do it. But her mother insisted that she phone Ladue Decker.

She went to the hall phone. Three short and one long turn of the handle. As she picked up the receiver, she could hear other receivers being lifted all along the line. If she wanted to warn her neighbours, all she had to do was to tell Ladue what had occurred.

"Tell Ladue to come over," ordered her mother from the other room. "Don't go telling him things over the phone; have the whole country in on us for dinner. And with rationing—Conchita acting the way she is—I couldn't face it."

"Hello, hello," came the sharp voice of Ladue's mother.

"This is Rusty, Mrs. Decker; is Ladue there?"

"He's about somewhere. What are you wanting with the boy?"

Rusty waited a moment. She felt everyone along the line waiting, wetting their tongues to relate, "Now that her brother's gone off, Rusty's running after Decker."

"Will you tell him my mother would like him to ride over. Something important has happened, and she and Uncle Jed want to discuss it with him."

"Important?" What?

Rusty gestured at her mother. "You can handle her; I can't," she whispered.

Rusty was relieved of going back to the scene of the slaughter with Decker when "Piney," the under-boss, offered to go with him.

"Now you forget this business, Miss Rusty," Piney advised. "We'll take care of it."

Forget it? How could she?

Then, cars began turning into the Double R—cars of neighbours who just thought they'd "drop in." They dropped in, stayed to dinner, then departed after Uncle Jed had glibly assured them that Rusty had "gone off half-cocked" merely because he found a dead yearling down in the north field.

"Hallucinations of rustlers," he chuckled.

In the kitchen, Rusty stood looking about in dismay. Conchita had left dirty dishes everywhere. The fires in the two big stoves were out, and the wood box was empty.

"Manny!"

Her young brother, who had been listening in on the men's conference, appeared hastily.

"Kindling and that box full of wood," Rusty ordered. "And make it snappy."

"Aw gee, Sis, us men are talking things over. Don't you want those gangsters to get caught? I gotta—"

Just then, Decker appeared and hooked a hand into Manny's collar.

"Come on, Big Stuff. We're commanders, see? That woodpile out there is a mess of Japs. Let's see which of us can pick off the most in the least time. Ready? Charge!"

Washing dishes wasn't so bad, thought Rusty, when you had a companion who sang as he dried them.

"And the funny old hills," crooned Decker. He broke off. "You know, if I were to go to the bunk house and talk to those men of yours—I mean if I had the right kind of authority—"

"What do you call the right kind of authority?"

"If I were to go there as your fiancé, they'd know they'd have to toe the mark till Ralph got home."

Some of them don't cotton workin' for a girl."

"They're not. They're working for the Double R the same as always, and they know it."

Decker went into a thoughtful rendition of "Tumbleweed" to break off with, "You haven't answered me."

"Answered?"

"I proposed."

Rusty turned, soapy hands going to her hips. Did you call that a proposal? It sounded more like the prospectus of a working agreement."

"Then how about this?" He pulled her to him. "Honest, little Half-pint, I've only been waiting for you to grow up. We can go into the Popovers for a honeymoon. I know a great place to camp. Stream rushes down in a roar, then spreads out in a green pool. There are trees, Rusty, big trees, and the ground beneath them is like a park. Next month there'll be flowers in the clearing."

Rusty closed her eyes and saw a young man with red hair—hair lank with river mud and water.

She pushed Decker away. "Sorry, something's lacking."

"What?"

She surveyed him critically. "Mud in your hair."

He laughed. "You mean 'mud in my eye?'"

"I don't know what I mean, Decker. It's just—no, but thank you."

He stared at her a moment as though not believing what he'd heard. And then into his eyes came a look of determination.

"You mean to say, 'not yet.' All right—but I'll be back for the yes I have coming!"

He wheeled and strode out of the room.

After supper Rusty walked through the twilight to the mess shack where her riders were having their evening meal. Not all of them were there. Only the men from the nearby range had come in.

"Hi gang," she greeted them, as she entered. "G o o n eating. . . Thanks, Ling, no coffee. The boys haven't enough as it is."

She told them what had happened and what they could expect; what plan they had worked out by Jed, Piney and Decker. Piney was already rounding up some riders whose prowess with a rifle was outstanding. One grizzled old man at the far end of the table piped up.

"Ain't likin' their plan, are you, Miss Rusty? Why? Got loose wires in it, ain't it?"

"Well, if your Dad was a-doin' it, or Ralph, they'd not wait to catch them gangsters with legal evidence of their crime. They'd go straight to the sheriff."

The men talked it over, Hank's voice rising above the others. Can't see any sense in lettin' them git themselves good beef to git caught with."

Rusty walked back to the house to find Piney had just ridden up.

"Short a man, Miss Rusty. Can sound me up one and stake him out? Want him over on that big east section. Tell him to ride from the big stump to the three rocks."

"I'll have someone there to cover," she promised.

But who? The men in the mess shack had already done a hard day's work.

She went to the corral, whistled up Babe and, saddling her, rode into the night.

OTTAWA WEEK BY WEEK

of Veterans Affairs, Hon. Ian MacKenzie, has stated in Ottawa that veterans will be consulted about this national war memorial plan, but he stressed that the final decision as to the war memorial will be a responsibility of the Government. So far it is reported in Ottawa that there is general satisfaction with the formulation of plans in the making for this ambitious project and Jacques Greber is hard at work in many conferences with officials and others.

No Monopoly

There is good progress across Canada in the construction of houses for veterans and their dependents. This has been made known in Ottawa by Reconstruction Minister Howe, who has explained that Wartime Housing Limited has the definite advantage of getting building supplies on a large mass basis, though no monopoly exists for this organization in any other way that would interfere with other building efforts.

More Money For M. P. A Government resolution in the House of Commons indicates an intention to pay all members allowance of $2,000 each for expenses incidental to the discharge of their duties and this would be in addition to the present $4,000 sessional indemnity, with this new payment becoming effective as of the start of the present session on September 6, 1945. Indeed, members of all political groups have been known to favour such a change and there has been widespread dissatisfaction in the ranks of the members for a long time at the slow progress in the recreation of such an increase since the costs of living in Ottawa for the average member has been rather high lately.

Weekly Wind Up

The Pensions Commission is able now to handle claims resulting from wounds or serious disability obtained in World War II within about a week of receipt of the Medical Board report. This has been revealed in Ottawa. . . State Secretary Hon. Paul Martin has informed the House of Commons that Sunday, November 11th will be observed as a day of remembrance for those who lost their lives in both World Wars I and II, with a two minutes silence being observed across Canada at 11 a.m. . . Count Jean de Hautecloque, the French Ambassador to Canada, has gone back to France for the purpose of conferring with the French authorities. . . It would not be surprising if Canadian newspapers had larger editions shortly, since it has become known in this capital that the abolition or increase of the newspaper ration for Canadian publishers as well as the removal of controls of exports of Canadian newspaper may be forthcoming soon, assuring a steady supply of newsprint for domestic consumption in Canada. . .

No less than 77 people were burned to death through the misuse of inflammable liquids and 307 lives were lost through fire as well as a property loss of about $40,000,000 in Canada last year. This was disclosed in Ottawa by Canada's Fire Commissioner, W. L. Clairmont. . . It is no longer a secret that members of Parliament are being flooded by requests of their constituents to help their sons, brothers, husbands and others to get their release from the armed forces as soon as possible in order that they might get back into civilian life or return home quickly, with this causing headaches to many members, even if the peoples' representatives in Parliament would not admit it in public. . . It is still a topic of much conversation along Parliament Hill, and this refers to the excellent speech in French made on two occasions lately by Major E. D. Fulton, Progressive-Conservative member for Kamloops, who seems to have aroused much interest among other English-speaking members for his efforts to address the House of Commons in both official languages whenever possible. In fact, it is hinted in some quarters that other English-speaking members may endeavour to follow his example in trying to do as much as possible in this respect during this session as a method of aiding national unity and good-will within Parliament.

APPOINTED CHAIRMAN SECURITIES COMMISSION

Appointment of Hon. Charles P. McTague, former Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, as chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission was announced last night by Premier Geo. A. Drew on behalf of his Government. The Premier also announced that the new Securities Act, "the best Securities Act yet drafted," would be proclaimed "as soon as the necessary details have been worked out by Attorney-General Blackwell and the new chairman of the commission."

As the public was aware, the premier said, the Government had been seeking to secure the right man to fill the important position as head of the commission.

"Mr. McTague brings to this extremely important post," he said, "extensive practical experience with the problems to be dealt with by the commission. He has a fine reputation as a former Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, by which he was loaned to the Federal Government early in the war to act as chairman of the War Contracts Depreciation Board."

WILLIAM LEON DESJARDINS
William Leon Desjardins, linotype operator with the News-Argus for the past four and a half years, died suddenly Sunday evening following a few hours' illness.

The late Mr. Desjardins was born in Picton, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Desjardins, and was in his 48th year. He was educated in the Picton schools and learned the printing trade at the Picton Times. In religion he was a Roman Catholic and while in Stirling was a devout member of St. James The Minor Church. Of a quiet and unassuming manner, he was held in high regard by a wide circle of friends who sincerely mourn his sudden passing. His bereaved wife and son, Gerald, will have the widespread sympathy for their sorrowing loss.

He leaves to mourn his wife, the Gerald, of Stirling; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Desjardins, of Picton; a sister, Mrs. Frank DeLisle, and a brother, Thos. Desjardins, both of Toronto.

The funeral took place at 8.45 a.m. Wednesday from Duffin's Funeral Parlours to St. James the Minor Church, Stirling, where requiem mass was celebrated at 9 a.m. by Rev. Father S. Lesage.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Ed. Gorman, Vincent Farrell, Wm. Long, R. B. Bell, C. B. Rollins and H. R. Tompkins.

In Hymen's Bonds

PORTER-HATTON

Standards of pink and white chrysanthemums and Autumn leaves decorated Sherbourne Street United Church, Toronto, on Saturday, Oct. 20, for the wedding of Betty Eleanor Hatton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford I. Hatton, Stirling, and Sqdn-Leader Chas. Husband Porter, D.F.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Porter, of Weston, Ont. Capt. A. M. Lavery officiated. Mr. T. D. Atkinson was at the organ and Miss Ruth Bromley sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a traditional white satin wedding gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and tight fitting bodice. The full ballerina skirt ended in a small sweep and a wreath of pearls caught her fingertip veil. She carried white chrysanthemums and bouvardia and wore pearls, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. E. Beamish, as matron of honor, and Miss Jacquelin Moyne as bridesmaid, were gownned alike in dresses of Oriental flame with feather headresses of black and flame. Both carried cascades of Sweetheart roses and sweet peas.

Mr. John Porter was groomsmen and the ushers were Flt. Lt. Stewart May, Sqdn-Ldr. Laurence Wells, Mr. Cecil Baker and Mr. Robt. L. Hatton.

To receive at Sherbourne House Club, the bride's mother chose a becoming gown of pencil blue with French cerise sequin trimming. She wore a cerise hat, stone marten furs and a corsage of American Beauty roses. The groom's mother wore a tulip frock with matching hat and silver fox furs and corsage of Better Time roses.

For travelling the bride changed to a mist grey suit, topped with a three-quarter length coat with wide cuffs of squirrel. Her accessories were brown with an off-the-face hat and an apricot rose corsage.

The couple will honeymoon in Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec, and on their return will reside in Toronto.

WATSON-ENGLISH

Autumn leaves, foliage and lighted candles formed a most picturesque setting on Saturday October 20, at two o'clock in Thomasburg United Church, when Ana Josephine, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew English, was united in holy matrimony to George Lorne Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Watson, of Harold, the Rev. Bernard Heywood officiating.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March played by Mr. Fred Porter, was attired in a floor-length gown of white satin and net. The bodice was tight fitting with buttoned back, long fitted sleeves and sweetheart neckline. She wore a fingertip veil and carried a bouquet of Better Time roses, bouvardia and fern.

Miss Margaret English, of Vancouver B.C., sister of the bride, was maid of honor wearing pale orchid with shoulder-length veil and carried a nosegay of Briardiffie roses and white baby chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Morton English, of Port Hope, attired in moss green crepe with shoulder-length veil, was bridesmaid. She carried a nosegay of Talisman roses and yellow baby chrysanthemums.

Mr. Don Walker, of Harold, was groomsmen and Messrs. Ward and Laird English, brothers of the bride, acted as ushers.

During the signing of the register, "O Promise Me" was very beautifully rendered by Miss Mina Dracup, Harold. Following the ceremony, a reception was held for seventy guests in Thomasburg I.O.O.F. Hall. The mother of the bride received, wearing an ensemble of fuchsia crepe, black accessories and a corsage of Sunbeam roses. The mother of the groom received in flowered silk jersey and wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

A delicious lunch was served by the Women's Association of the church, the serveurs being: Marjorie Elliott, Mina Dracup, Alice Heasman, Marion Grills, Alexandra Gilmour, Hilda Burley, Maude Burke and Leona Morton.

Immediately following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Watson left by motor for Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo, the bride wearing a rose-colored wool suit, blue coat with cream wolf collar and matching accessories.

The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely chest of silver and to the groomsmen and ushers, billfolds. The bride's gifts to the maid of honor, bridesmaid, were earrings; to the soloist, a pin and to the pianist, a key chain.

Guests were present from: Tweed, Corbyville, Frankford, Harold, Belleville, Trenton, Toronto and Buffalo.

RODGERS—RUNNALLS

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday, October 20th, at 4 p.m., at St. Andrew's Presbyterian manse, when Anne Lenora, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Runnalls, of Harold, became the bride of Walter Percy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Rodgers of Stirling. Rev. W. H. V. Walker officiated.

The bride wore a brown wool suit, with brown accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Lindsay McKeown, who chose a navy blue suit with matching accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. Donald Rodgers, brother of the groom, was the best man.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the happy couple left for points east.

On their return, they will reside in Belleville.
